

ALL HOPE GONE FOR ENTOMBED SNOW VICTIMS

Rescue Workers Believe All Caught Under Great Slide Must Have Frozen To Death.

36 BODIES TAKEN FROM WRECKAGE

Miners Believe That Some of Bodies May Not Be Recovered Until Thaw Comes in Spring.

Bingham, Utah, February 18.—Rescue workers have given up hope of saving any more victims of the Ssp Gulch snow avalanche.

After more than thirty hours of frantic digging in the mountain of snow and debris which swept down on the copper mining settlement, officials said late Thursday that the last of the bodies might not be uncovered until spring.

The latest re-check of the snowslide's deadly work indicates that between 50 and 70 persons were killed. Thirty-six bodies have been recovered and 12 persons have been taken out alive but injured.

Frank A. Wardlaw, superintendent of the Utah-Idaho Mining company, said life beneath the mass of snow would be impossible after 24 hours, due to the intense cold.

Work Is Stopped.

The work of digging into the huge deposits had about stopped Thursday night and workers and survivors took time to recount their versions of the disaster.

Tony Valasie, salesman, was taking an order at a boarding house when the avalanche engulfed him. He lay beneath the debris for six hours.

"I rushed to the door when the snow began coming down through the ceiling," he said, "but the door would not budge."

"Then the whole room collapsed and I was pinned down by my legs. I could hear the cook, Joe Atencia, groaning a few feet away and I pinched him so he would know I was alive. Then he stopped groaning and I guess that was when he died."

"I went unconscious and did not wake up until they took me to the hospital."

Plays Strange Pranks.

The avalanche played strange pranks as it swept down on the village. Luther McCandless was taken from the wreckage of his rooming house uninjured but his bedmate, Ben Benson, was buried so deep in the snow that he suffocated before rescuers could reach him.

J. H. Rents said the snowslide came upon his home without warning. "I thought it was an earthquake at first, the way the house trembled," he said. "I was buried under bedding, snow and the walls of my room. Somehow I was able to drag myself up to the light and air and the boys pulled me out."

Leaders in the rescue were high in their praise of the miners who dug unceasingly at the tons of snow. There were no cases of pillaging. Money found in the clothing of the dead was turned over to mine officials and probably will be added to a benefit fund for widows and orphans.

Moments of Compensation.

The rescue work was not without its moments of compensation for the miners. Once they ran onto a 40-gallon keg of wine but it could not be extricated. A rubber tube was dropped through the bung and the tired workers refreshed themselves by taking turns on the other end of the line.

The heavy snow—10 inches in 24 hours—which caused the devastating slide has spread apprehension throughout Bingham canyon. Engineers of

BEER CRY HEARD AS DRYS AND WETS BATTLE IN HOUSE

Boisterous Session Held Following Attack by Deal on Prohibition Officers.

HILL IS GLEEFUL; CHIDES BLANTON

"No Man Is Safe From These Vultures," Says Deal, Attacking Prohibition Officers.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, February 18.—A deep bass cry for beer from several members brought an appropriate climax to one of the most boisterous prohibition sessions of the house of representatives Thursday in these days when such discussions are becoming more frequent.

Representative Deal, Virginia, democrat, started the ball rolling with a speech in which he declared that the rights of American citizens are being nullified and violated in the enforcement of the Volstead act.

This provoked Representative Blanton, Texas, democrat. He demanded time to answer the attack upon prohibition and a free-for-all resulted, with wets taking every opportunity to needle Blanton, who opened himself for the crowning remark, when he shouted:

Cry for Beer.

"What do these wets want? A moment of silence followed. Then came the answer:

"Beer!"

Prior to the lively argument on the enforcement chief, let it be known that he favored a general survey of prohibition, as it provided in a resolution introduced in the house by Representative Celler, New York, democrat, but did not commit himself to Celler's plan for the survey.

Secretary Mellon's opposition to the suggestion that the government buy up all the medical liquor in the country also was made known at the treasury Thursday.

Hill Is Gleeeful.

Representative John Philip Hill, of Baltimore, leader of the house wets, who was acquitted some months ago when he defied the law by manufacturing cider and wine in his own home, gleefully chided Blanton when opportunity was offered.

"Will the rider of the great white charger deny that Milwaukee beer is intoxicating?" Blanton asked Hill.

"Yes, I deny it," he answered.

"When did you ever taste this beer?"

Evading the question, Blanton said he could take Hill to Baltimore and get him beer that would make him so drunk "that you won't know you have ever been in office."

"How do you know?" interjected Representative Laguardia, New York independent, who sat on the front row.

"Well, a democrat from Baltimore told me there were 50 saloons running wild in Baltimore," Blanton shot back.

Deal cited cases where "human beings have been shot without any other process of law than the suspicion of some enforcement officer."

"Truly no man or woman is safe from these vultures turned loose upon society by the vain and fruitless effort to force morals into human beings," he declared.

G.O.P. Heads Plan To Halt House Probes

Action Is Aimed Indirectly At Two Proposed Liquor Inquiries.

Washington, February 18.—(AP)—A group of prominent house republicans agreed at a conference today to put the legislative brakes on any move to start investigation by house committees. This decision is in line with that reached yesterday by senate republicans to check inquiries in that chamber.

This Is Opinion of Attorney General Furnished At Request of Chatham Ordinary.

COURT DECISION CITED BY NAPIER

Additional Angle in Discussion of Five-Day Ban-Posting Measure Develops.

Marriages contracted in other states by couples from Georgia who leave the state for the purpose of evading provisions of the Georgia marriage laws are voidable, according to an opinion rendered Thursday by Attorney General George M. Napier.

The opinion was given on request of Henry McAlpin, Chatham county ordinary, at Savannah, who wrote the attorney general stating that, since passage of the Georgia law requiring five days' publication of marriage notices prior to issuance of licenses, many Savannah couples marry in South Carolina and return to their homes in Savannah to live.

In ruling that such marriages are voidable, the attorney general cites Section 2943 of the Georgia code, which reads:

"Parties residing in this state cannot evade any of the provisions of its laws as to marriage by going into another state for the solemnization of the marriage ceremony."

Mr. Napier also cites the supreme court of the state, which has laid down the principle that Georgia courts will not regard what is known as the doctrine of comity of states; in this case involving recognition of contracts executed in South Carolina when enforcement or recognition of such contracts is contrary to the policy of the laws of Georgia or prejudicial to the interests of this state.

In stating his opinion that such marriages are voidable, the attorney general says that "the protection of the parties such as they would have under the marriage contract assumed under the provisions of the laws of Georgia, will be found wanting, in the event proceedings arise which will bring to the knowledge of the courts the fact that they left this state and went into another state in order to evade the laws of the state of Georgia."

The Georgia law requiring posting of public notice for five days, passed by the legislature two years ago, has resulted in many Georgia couples going to South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama or Florida to be married in order to avoid this requirement. It has been the subject of much discussion among public officials, ministers and members of the general assembly. Efforts to repeal or change the law met failure in the last legislature.

REASONS FOR OPINION GIVEN BY ORDINARY.

Savannah, Ga., February 18.—The action of the ordinary of Chatham county in calling upon the attorney general for an opinion of the effect of the publicity feature of the Georgia marriage law followed upon the discovery that boys and girls, some of whom were no older than 16 and 17 years, had gone into South Carolina and had been married.

In most instances the ages appearing upon the marriage licenses were said to have been exaggerated. In some cases the parents have become reconciled to the marriages, while in others applications have been filed to declare the marriages null.

COMMONS RATIFIES MOSUL OIL TREATY

Approves British Mandate Over Irak, Where Lie Rich Oil Fields Sought by Turks.

London, February 18.—(AP)—The house of commons tonight ratified the treaty of Irak, which consists of a convention between Great Britain and the Irak kingdom whereby the British mandate is extended to a maximum of 25 years. The vote was 200 to 116. The signing of the treaty on January 14 was in conformity with the decision of the League of Nations council in the Anglo-Turkish dispute over the territory of Mosul, which lies within Irak.

The debate on the subject lasted several hours and strong opposition came from the labor party. J. Ramsay MacDonald, supporting the labor amendment against ratification, made the interesting revelation that during his administration the Turks once were believed to be moving troops to "jump the ditch," until they were warned they would find the British ready.

L. C. M. Amery, minister for the colonies, explaining the treaty and the government's policy, maintained that Irak's specific undertaking to become fully responsible for its own internal and external security by 1928 remained unaltered. All Great Britain undertook by the treaty was responsibility as the mandatory power for another 25 years, unless in the meantime Irak became a member of the League of Nations.

G. O. P. IS HIT AS CONDONING LAW VIOLATION

Battle of Parties Starts in Senate Over Secretary of Treasury Mellon's Aluminum Company.

CAMPAIGN IS LED BY SENATOR WALSH

Picturing Concern as Monopoly, He Demands Prosecution of Firm by Special Counsel.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, February 18.—The first battle of the party struggle for control of the next congress to be elected this year and for capture of the presidency in 1928, began today in the senate.

As the first of a series of indictments the democratic party will bring against the party in power the democrats of the senate charged the Coolidge administration with condoning violation of the anti-trust laws by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's Aluminum Company of America and demanded prosecution of the concern by special counsel independent of the department of justice.

Walsh Leads Fight.

The fighting in this first skirmish of the campaign was led by Senator Walsh, democrat, of Montana, who directed the investigation of the navy oil scandals in which Fall, Doherty and Sinclair were indicted and who is regarded as an important potential candidate for the democratic nomination for president in 1928.

Senator Walsh, after showing that the aluminum trust is owned by the secretary of the treasury, third richest man in the country, and his brother, R. B. Mellon, depicted the concern as a monopoly of cooking and other utensils of aluminum which defies the law with impunity. It enjoys this immunity, Senator Walsh asserted, under the protection of its owner with a seat in the cabinet, and of his fellow cabinet member, Attorney General Sargent, who has absolved the trust of guilt, despite the opinion of his predecessor, Mr. Stone, now associate justice of the supreme court, and of the federal trade commission.

The democratic leader proposed by resolution an investigation by the senate judiciary committee to determine whether the aluminum company has violated consent decrees enjoining monopolistic practices, a majority of the committee already having indicated that it now is convinced of such violation. If the committee should determine, after further investigation, that there had been a violation, another resolution, Senator Walsh said, would be offered providing for special prosecution of the trust in the manner of the oil scandal suit.

Supported by LaFollette.

The democrats are being supported by the LaFollette group and other irregular republicans in this assault on the administration, but the regular republicans disclosed that they will resist to the last ditch a move which they pronounce purely political. They

KING AND QUEEN FIND THEMSELVES BROKE FOR NONCE

London, February 18.—(AP)—Even the king and queen of the world's greatest empire find themselves financially embarrassed sometimes.

Their majesties were leaving the British Industries fair at Shepherd's bush today when a Salvation Army lass appealed to them for a contribution to the army's "self-denial fund."

The king and queen looked helplessly at each other. Neither had any money but both were anxious to give. Members of their entourage quickly solved the difficulty and handsome contributions were forthcoming.

Head of Child Welfare Work Is Named in Divorce Suit

DECREES GRANTED BUT NEWS IS SUPPRESSED

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Chicago, February 18.—Files in the county building revealed today that Mark T. McKee was named in a divorce case filed in June, 1924, which was carefully suppressed. Although McKee is not identified in the bill, Edith Karabell, whose husband, Max J. Karabell, was granted a divorce, stated in an interview at Indianapolis today that McKee is a Michigan politician and is head of the National Child Welfare activities of the American Legion.

Testimony linking McKee's name with that of Edith Karabell, was a divorce for Max J. Karabell, secretary to an official of the Erie railroad, on statutory grounds. The decree was granted March 13, 1925, by Judge Harry A. Lewis. Under examination by his attorneys Karabell declared that on some date—he couldn't recall—his wife, with whom he lived in Chicago, admitted misconduct with McKee in Indianapolis, New York

SEABOARD ANNOUNCES PLANS OF EXTENSIVE DEVELOPMENTS IN SOUTH GEORGIA, FLORIDA

ATLANTA CHAMBER PLANS TO ENJOIN BARBER MEASURE

Directors Protest Against Sections Barring Boys Under 14 From Colored Shops.

SEEKING JUSTICE, SAYS HOFFMAN

Letter to Negro Barbers Says Body Believes Act Approved Only by 'Small Minority.'

Directors of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce Thursday afternoon voted unanimously to file a bill of injunction in the courts against enforcement of the city ordinance relating to colored barbers. The measure was passed by city council a few days ago and signed by the mayor.

A letter has been sent by the chamber to representative colored barbers stating its position in the matter and asking permission to file the injunction suit in their name.

The suit, it was stated, will be made against that portion of the ordinance which forbids boys under 14 from patronizing colored barber shops, and other sections. The section which forbids negro barbers from waiting upon white women will not be contested.

In announcing the action of the chamber, President W. D. Hoffman said that "the directors of the chamber of commerce have taken this action in behalf of what we consider to be justice."

"In respect of 'of the colored' or 'white question,'" he said, "we believe that no industry or organization of industries has the right to legislate against enjoyment by other people of the right of earning their living in a law-abiding manner."

Believe Act Unconstitutional.

"To this end we have requested permission to bring this matter to the courts for the purpose of testing the constitutionality of the ordinance, and we are acting on the opinion of able counsel that the ordinance is not constitutional."

"We have been requested to take this action by many of the representative citizens of Atlanta who believe that as the chamber of commerce is supposed to represent every class of citizen, it is the proper body to see that no class is unfairly dealt with."

"We have no quarrel with any organization, but we do believe the city council has not the right to legislate against any legitimate business."

"In regard to the section relating to

USES GUINEA PIGS TO TEST LIQUOR, LANDS IN JAIL

New York, February 18.—(AP)—The drunken revelling of guinea pigs used, federal officials said, to test the fitness for human consumption of alleged whisky and alcohol, led to the arrest today of Rudolph Gelb, a grocery store proprietor, on a charge of illegal possession of liquor.

The liquor was found in a vacant apartment belonging to Gelb, adjoining the grocery. The agents said a tenant of an adjoining apartment, unable to sleep because of the high wailing of the pigs held by day and night, entered an anonymous complaint, which resulted in Gelb's arrest.

'WALTERS' ROADS MAY MERGE SOON

Failure of Directors of Louisville and Nashville To Name President Declared Significant.

New York, February 18.—(AP)—Signs that a consolidation of the "Walters" railroads, the foremost of which are the Atlantic Coast Line and the Louisville and Nashville, was a step nearer completion were seen by Wall street today in the failure of the Louisville and Nashville to elect a new president to succeed the late W. I. Mapother.

Instead, the directors of the road created the new office of executive vice president to which George E. Evans, vice president in charge of operation, was elected. In his new post Mr. Evans will be empowered to fulfill the duties normally imposed upon the president. Henry Walters will continue as chairman of the Louisville and Nashville as well as the Atlantic Coast Line.

Reports that steps would be taken shortly to merge all the "Walters" roads into a new southern system have been current in the financial district for several months.

Such a system probably would embrace, in addition to the Coast Line and Louisville and Nashville, the Carolina, Cincinnati and Ohio, now jointly controlled by the two roads, and the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, of which a majority stock interest is held by the Louisville and Nashville. Total assets would be close to $1,000,000,000 and the combined mileage would approximate 13,000.

Jazzy Charleston To Invade Home of Grand Opera Stars

ULTRA MODERN BALLET WILL BE PRESENTED

BY FRANK GETTY.

New York, February 18.—The venerable boards of the Metropolitan Opera house, whence the world's greatest singers have cast their notes of gold and silver to enraptured audiences, will respond to the jazzy thump-thump of the Charleston Friday evening, when John Alden Carpenter's ultra-modern ballet, "Sky-scrapers," has its first presentation.

Cake walks, negro spirituals and the moaning of saxophones will replace for the first time in the tradition-ridden "Met" the classic roles of grand opera.

It will be jazz strained through a symphony orchestra, for of course the capitulation is not complete. But with four saxophones and a banjo in the orchestra, and with the classic and Russian schools of ballet completely subordinated to the rhythmic Charleston, staid patrons of the Metropolitan are in for the shock of their lives.

Futuristic scenes and "strutting" blackface comedians are to replace the familiar operatic settings and toe dancing for jazz's "mad half hour" on the operatic stage.

Watching the dress rehearsal while strains more familiar in night clubs and cabaret than in the musty old opera house rose in synopated waves from the orchestra pit, one half expected Frank Tinney to stroll from the wings and engage the subreptic in some such conversation as:

"Who was that lady I seen you with last night?"

The settings were designed by Robert Edmond Jones, and are modern to the "nth" degree. The ballet was directed by "Sammy" Lee, whose reputation heretofore has been confined to musical comedy and revues.

"I didn't try to tell a story in 'Sky-scrapers,'" Carpenter said, after heaving a sigh of satisfaction when the dress rehearsal was at an end. "And I'm not certain that 'jazz opera' is a possibility. But the ballet is flexible, and can be adapted to modern themes."

Some of the house conferees left the room and the others refused to discuss the matter further. At the end of the 45 minutes, however, the conference was reopened, and all members left tonight smiling, although no agreement yet has been reached on the inheritance tax.

The row was the culmination of many spirited disputes which have marked the conference, and was one of the few times in recent legislative history that such a situation has developed. It also differed from most congressional disputes in that it was a distinct fight between the senate and house without party lines.

The return of the house managers to conference was taken generally to indicate they would win their fight for restoration of the levy to the bill. The conference is expected to act on this as well as other rate schedules before the end of the week.

MAIN SHORT LINE IN SOUTH GEORGIA FEATURE OF PLANS

Construction of 2 Roads and Leases Expected to Add 637 Miles of Track to Present System.

ATLANTA BENEFITS UNDER PROGRAM

Comprehensive Interlinking Will Afford New Service to South Georgia and Florida Coasts.

Plans to establish new through rail routes linking Atlanta directly with Florida east coast points and giving traffic from western Florida cities quick connection with its Savannah-to-Montgomery trunk line by means of a new short line through south Georgia to Albany, were announced Thursday by S. Davies Warfield, president of the Seaboard Air Line.

Mr. Warfield's statement issued from Baltimore was to the effect that the comprehensive development and interlinking plans will add 637 miles of track to the Seaboard's lines which, with subsidiaries and upon completion of lines now under construction on east and west coasts of Florida, including the Miami and Fort Myers extensions, will bring the system's trackage to nearly 5,500 miles. The statement also outlined in detail plans for financing the developments, the funds to be largely subscribed by Seaboard stockholders and employees through a half million shares of new stock.

The statement disclosed the fact that the Seaboard will eliminate a triangular haul by way of Savannah between its western Florida lines and its main Savannah-to-Montgomery line by throwing its traffic across south Georgia to Albany on a new short line, connecting with a short line from Albany to Richmond, Ga., which latter city is on the Savannah-Montgomery trunk line.

New Plan Changes.

The Seaboard now brings freight into Atlanta from eastern points over its New York-to-Birmingham line and routes southbound traffic over the Southern railroad to Macon. Thence it is routed to Vidalia over the Macon, Dublin and Savannah and from Vidalia to Savannah and Jacksonville over Seaboard rail.

The Warfield statement was to the effect that a new short line in Florida via a proposed Inglis-Dunnellon-Wildwood cut-off will provide a direct route to Palm Beach, Miami and other east coast cities.

The other short line which will link northbound Florida traffic with the western lines of the Seaboard will be constructed from Perry, Fla., to Albany. This will give the Florida traffic outlet over the Seaboard's Albany-Columbus line to the Montgomery trunk line at Richmond. In this

AUTOPSY REVEALS CONVICT WAS SLAIN

Tusculum, Ala., February 18.—(AP)—Charging that his son, Hoote Taylor, had been "brutally murdered," J. W. Taylor, father of the Colbert county convict who died in November at Flat Top mines, today announced his intention to "see this whole thing through." In a statement he declared that the examination of the body of his son yesterday near Town Creek revealed "just what I expected." The autopsy, he said, bore out his contention that his son died as a result of a beating administered him shortly after he was sent to the mines.

The aged parent was present when his son's body was examined and watched every detail of the examination by Dr. H. C. McCullough and the coroner's jury. Mr. Taylor in a lengthy statement to the press today said that he expected to see the officials of Flat Top after those alleged to have been responsible for the man's death had been "punished to the fullest extent of the law."

"My son never suffered from heart trouble, and he did not have any habits that would bring on such attack," said the aged parent.

"The mystery about the whole affair is why my son was sent to the coal mines when he had only one eye and one good hand. He could not possibly have made a full hand at digging coal. The attorney general will be asked to take up the inquiry immediately."

Parent-Teacher Body Wants Bond Election For Savannah Schools

Savannah, Ga., February 18.—(Special.)—Parent-Teacher associations over the city and county, of which organizations there are about 50 with a membership running into thousands, this week are petitioning the board of education to petition in turn the county commissioners and the city officials to provide soon for a bond issue for schools in Savannah.

No new building has been erected in several years and the schools are all crowded. Recent provision for two new grammar schools, one for white and one for colored students, is totally inadequate, it is declared. It is a situation in which 50 to 60 students are in one classroom in many houses and open halls are being used for study rooms.

A million and a half dollars is the sum said to be about right for the proper building program but stress is being laid on efforts to effect issuance of $500,000 in bonds at the earliest possible moment to relieve the present situation with a new high school and modernization of buildings already held.

Detective W. D. McGee, credited with having so closely grilling George Tindell, alias LeRoy Smith, shown in inset, the negro confessed his own and his partner's activities, is seen at center in the group of women who are searching for clothing taken from their homes recently. Detectives L. D. Cody and M. L. Rivers, who aided in the roundup, are shown at extreme left. Detective L. H. Satterfield, McGee's partner and coworker in arresting and grilling the two negroes, is not in the photograph.

contend that despite the finding of the trade commission, the department of justice, after a careful investigation discovered no ground for contempt action for violation of the decree and deny the right of the senate to intervene with a view of starting a prosecution independent of the executive law department.

Senator Cummins, republican, of Iowa, in a minority report from the judiciary committee of which he is chairman, pronounced the Walsh program unconstitutional and in expressing his views, employed ominous language.

"It is the judgment of the minority of the committee," he said, "that there is no constitutional authority for the resolution recommended in the majority and that if the course indicated in the proposed resolution becomes the settled practice of the senate, the overthrow of our form of government is the certain result."

Walsh Answers.

"My friend, the senator from Iowa," said Senator Walsh, "thinks all that is unconstitutional. Of course, if it is then our joint resolution authorizing the employment of special counsel in the Teapot Dome matter was unconstitutional and Messrs. Pomerene and Roberts are entirely without authority in the premises at all; and inasmuch as they went before the grand jury in those proceedings, if they had no authority at all, their presence in the grand jury room, of course, violated all the indictments that were found. I suggest that probably Mr. Doherty and Mr. Fall and his associates would compare the senator from Iowa quite lavishly if he were able to sustain that proposition in those proceedings. I, myself, can see no constitutional objection to the procedure."

"It has been cynically said by a great criminal lawyer that 'you can't convict $100,000,000.' The iconoclasts of Russia assailed our government as being dominated entirely by vast aggregations of capital, the controlling spirits in which manage to work their will through the machinery of government which we fondly believe assures in this country government by the people. The holdup man, the confidence man, the burglar who prowls about our houses at midnight, all ply their trade and save their consciences with the conviction that many men of millions get in one way or another immunity for their crime."

"If this charge is dismissed, this change in effect against a man of great wealth, a member of the president's cabinet, a charge preferred by a department of the government created by the congress of the United States for the express purpose, among others, of inquiring into just such matters as this, a majority of that commission being of the same political party as the accused officer, repeated and reassured by the attorney general of the United States, allied politically in the same way with him, a fellow member of the cabinet—I say, sir, if this charge is dismissed upon such a pretense of an investigation as this, I know how to feel about our laws! By your vote you will either vindicate or undermine the confidence of the American people in their government."

Senator Walsh declared the charge could not be made that political bias controlled the federal trade commission when it made its report on aluminum, pointing out that its membership included three republicans and two democrats, and that two of each were present when the report was made. The report, he said, was adopted unanimously. The fifth member of the committee, however, the chamber of commerce has no wish to enter into a controversy in opposition to this point.

white women being waited upon by negro barbers, our investigation shows no evidence that this has been the practice. We doubt if it has existed in any city. However, the chamber of commerce has no wish to enter into a controversy in opposition to this point.

The committee on church cooperation held a special session on Thursday afternoon in the Wesley Memorial building and endorsed the action of the chamber of commerce in voting to file a bill of injunction in the courts against enforcement of city ordinance relating to the colored barbers.

Chairman M. M. Davies presided at the meeting and 15 members were present.

Attorneys Volunteer.

The chamber of commerce is represented by Robert C. Alston, Morris Brandon and Marion Smith, who have volunteered their services without fee. The letter addressed by the chamber of commerce to the colored barbers follows:

To the colored barbers of Atlanta:

The chamber of commerce feels that the recent ordinance adopted by the city council of Atlanta concerning barbers is unjust to the colored barbers of Atlanta inasmuch as it undertakes to prevent them from serving children under 14 years of age and in so far as it deals with the closing hours, to the extent that, as these aspects, it is not approved by more than a small minority of the white citizens.

The chamber is also advised by counsel, on whose judgment we are willing to rely, that the ordinance is unconstitutional in the aspects above mentioned and that its enforcement as to them can and should be enjoined in the courts.

We believe it is the duty of the white citizens of Atlanta to meet and counteract the effects of this ordinance in the aspects mentioned above. In order to do this, we have decided to bring in your behalf a bill of injunction to the courts to prevent the enforcement of this ordinance in the aspects mentioned above. The arrangement for this will be made by the chamber of commerce without expense to you.

(Signed) Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, W. D. HOFFMAN, President.

DRUNK SAVES MINER FROM DEATH IN SNOW

Salt Lake City, Utah, February 18.—While casualty lists at the Sap Gulch snowslide reported him "missing," Tom Harrington, a Bingham miner, was sleeping his way out from under an avalanche of liquor in jail here.

"This sure was better than sleeping on an undertaker's slab," Harrington remarked as he cheerfully paid a $15 fine for intoxication and started home to report he was no longer "missing."

way the triangular land to Savannah and back westward will be eliminated. President Warfield's statement gave no intimation of other Georgia towns that will be touched by the contemplated new short line across south Georgia to Albany.

Many Rumors Current.

While the statement also failed to give particulars of the new direct line to Macon in Atlanta, it revived reports which have been in circulation here some weeks to the effect that negotiations have been under way looking to acquisition of a railroad right-of-way from the Seaboard belt line on the eastern outskirts of Atlanta southward to the tracks and the Savannah railroad.

This would seem to fit in with the Seaboard's plans for construction of two or three miles of track, which would permit the Seaboard to shut its off its New York-Atlanta trunk line onto the belt line and send them directly onto the Southern railroad's tracks to Macon, thus eliminating switching inside the city.

While no official information is available, it is believed if the new interlinking line is constructed, it will mean construction of a passenger station on the eastern edge of town somewhat similar to the Southern road's Brookwood station.

No information concerning the proposed extension plans of the Seaboard Air Line in Georgia has been filed with the Georgia public service commission it was learned Thursday afternoon.

noon and declared she could see no more visitors. At her request her friend, Mrs. Gordon Carr, her literary representative, Horace Green and her new play-broker, F. A. Jones, left early. She was too upset to continue her conferences with them.

Late tonight she had not requested medical attention. The United States public service doctors on Ellis Island are at her disposal.

Hays Will Act.

Arthur Garfield Hays, retained as her counsel by a group of New York women sympathizers, announced tonight he will apply tomorrow morning, after a conference with his client, to United States district court here for a writ of habeas corpus that will open the way to final settlement of the legal aspects of the controversy.

Hays' counsel's attorney today, DeFord explaining he was retained only to prosecute, before the board of survey at Washington, his appeal from the order of deportation entered by the local board of inquiry.

Immigration authorities said tonight the habeas writ probably would be granted and would act as a stay to postpone her enforced departure. If a federal judge decides to admit her on bond, she may enjoy a visit of two or three weeks in this country before her formal court battle to upset Secretary Davis' exclusion order develops.

By carrying her case to higher courts Lady Cathart might defer deportation for months. But there is slight chance of her winning a favorable decision. It is seldom that an immigrant, as Ellis Island classifies her, succeeds in upsetting a labor department exclusion order.

"I didn't sleep all night after hearing that Secretary Davis had barred me," she said the countless today.

"Why have they singled me out for this cruelty?"

"Others Are Admitted."

"I am told that recently a woman who came here with an illegitimate child was admitted without bond. And a British officer who came here admitted he had been guilty of the same variety of moral turpitude that I confessed, and was permitted to enter the country in four days."

"So why should I make an exception in my case?"

Immigration Commissioner Henry H. Curran, most unhappy figure in the whole Cathart-Craven storm, has a defender. Strangely enough it is Countess Cathart, herself, who insists he is innocent of any part in her banishment.

The commissioner, worn out by the assaults on him of newspapers and public personages, succumbed today to a case of the grippe. Today the countess said: "I am most sorry about the blame heaped on Commissioner Curran. That part has been too, too, too. He has not been in a position to do anything. He has made me very comfortable. He has been so sympathetic. I feel sure that if so sympathetic."

His hands I would have been permitted to enter. But he is merely a servant of the government. He can do nothing."

Prominent Physician Victim of Pneumonia At Jeffersonville

Jeffersonville, Ga., February 18.—(Special.)—Following a brief illness from pneumonia superinduced by an attack of flu, Dr. T. S. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Grace (Chapman) Jones, teacher of expression in the Twiggs County High school here, and one of the leading women in Jeffersonville's school and community life; one daughter, Mrs. Nellie Thompson, Wrightsville, Ga., and three sons, Dr. Cowan E. Jones, a surgeon in the United States marine corps; Isadore Jones, of Enley, Ala., and T. S. Jones, a law student in the University of Georgia, at Athens.

His father was a major in the Confederate army, and during his lifetime one of the most prominent citizens of this county. Dr. Jones graduated at the Louisville, Ky., Medical college, and during his many years of practice here achieved a wide and enviable reputation for his ability as a physician.

Avoid Poorly-Balanced Breakfasts

Quaker Oats supplies excellent "food balance"

If you feel tired, hungry, "fidgety," hours before lunch, don't jump to the conclusion of poor health. You may have unenergetic mornings because your breakfasts lack certain important food elements.

To feel right, you must have a well-balanced, complete breakfast ration. At most other meals—lunch and dinner—you get it. But breakfast is a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder, 58% carbohydrates, its great energy element, plus all important vitamins and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning. Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. That's faster than plain toast. Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers you.

MAJORITY OF STOPS ARE NOT OPPOSED

Public hearing before the Georgia public service commission on street car stop eliminations was greeted Thursday by a much larger crowd than on opening day, but the majority of the stops which it is proposed to eliminate was again unopposed. In several instances certain changes were vigorously protested.

The hearing will be continued this morning at 10 o'clock, when three more routes will be taken up. Those scheduled for today are the Peachtree-Whitehall; West Peachtree-East Hunter; and Marietta-East Fair lines. Thursday the commission considered proposed changes on the Inman Park-Georgia avenue line, the Highland Avenue-Pryor street line and the Forest avenue-Capitol avenue line.

A touch of humor was injected into the Thursday proceedings when W. E. Hancock protested against removal of the Hancock stop on Briarcliff road "300 feet west," as had been published. He stated this would place the stop 300 feet from the street car tracks, which run north and south.

However, when the error was rectified and it was found the proposal was to move the stop 300 feet north, Mr. Hancock still opposed the change.

T. B. Everett, representing residents of Oxford road, protested elimination of half-way stop No. 2 east of Decatur road on the Inman Park-Empire university line. He stated that residents of that section had won out in a previous fight before the commission on removal of that stop and said that between 20 and 30 new families have moved into the neighborhood since the earlier hearing.

Continuance of the half-way stop on Hurt street between Edgewood and Euclid avenues was urged by W. E. Newell. Protest against elimination of the present stop at St. Charles avenue on the Highland avenue line was voiced by W. G. England, secretary to Judge O. H. B. Bloodworth, of the Georgia court of appeals.

Other individuals and delegations appeared to protest changes in various stops on the Forest avenue-Capitol avenue line, principal opposition appearing when the Forest avenue end of the line was being considered. S. E. McDaniel, W. Stephens and R. E. L. Reynolds appeared in opposition to elimination or changing of several stops in the vicinity of Boulevard Park. Mrs. George Olear spoke briefly in commendation of the stop elimination plan.

Resolutions expressing the hope that Dr. M. Ashby Jones, pastor of the Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist church, would decline the call to the pastorate of the Second Baptist church, of St. Louis, tendered him unanimously adopted Thursday by the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A.

"The opinion of the board is that Dr. Jones has been one of the most constructive forces on civic righteousness in the community and it is not only the question of a local church losing its pastor but a city losing one of its foremost citizens," the resolutions pointed out.

GEORGIA TO OPPOSE CHANGE IN SAND AND GRAVEL RATES

Loss of at least $300,000 annually will develop upon the Georgia highway department if proposed increases of freight rates on sand and gravel in the southeast go into effect, according to Attorney Edgar H. Watkins, who is opposing the changes in rates at a hearing in progress this week at the Biltmore hotel before Commissioner E. L. Lewis and Examiner F. H. Waters, of the interstate commerce commission.

Rate Expert E. M. Price, of the Georgia public service commission, is attending the hearing and is expected to testify later on behalf of the Georgia commission, which promulgated the rates which are now under attack. It is contended by proponents of the rate schedules now sought, Mr. Watkins said, that the Georgia rates are lower than those in force in other southeastern states, notably Virginia and North Carolina.

In 1921, according to Mr. Watkins, a request for increases was made and increases granted, but a 10 per cent reduction was ordered in 1925.

SEEK TO INDICT CLARENCE SAUNDERS

St. Louis, February 18.—(AP)—Information obtained by the postoffice department in investigation of the sale of Piggly Wiggly corporation stock by Clarence Saunders, of Memphis, Tenn., in 1923, was presented to the federal grand jury here today in an effort to obtain an indictment charging him with use of the mails to defraud.

Office inspectors declared Saunders caused news advertisements to be published and mailed sales literature promising a 7 per cent return to those who invested in his chain system of self-service groceries. Saunders' spectacular financial collapse that year made the promise unavailing, inspectors said.

A woman who fled before police could learn her name was crushed against a door jam when shoppers in a variety store became panicky and bolted for the exits.

Whitman Wanted Here To Finish Gang Term Known as J. C. Lee

"William Whitman," referred to in New York dispatches as held for extradition to Georgia, is known on Georgia prison records as "J. C. Lee," it was stated Thursday at the office of the Georgia prison commission.

Lee, or Whitman, was convicted in Fulton superior court of violation of the Georgia securities law in the sale of bonds connected with the formation of an Atlanta taxicab company. He was sentenced to the penitentiary, but escaped from the Cherokee county convict camp on June 16, 1924, when he was within two weeks of completion of his sentence. Loss of his good behavior allowance, incidental to the escape, leaves him a year yet to serve in Georgia.

Advices from New York received by the prison commission Thursday afternoon were that extradition proceedings had been set for hearing there on February 23. Whitman is fighting extradition. A deputy from Solicitor General John A. Boykin's office, who went to New York to bring the prisoner back, wired the commission Thursday asking that an additional man be sent, as Whitman has a reputation as being desperate.

Whitman was recently discharged by the United States district court in New York after a disagreement which ended his trial on charges of impersonating an army officer. He was immediately rearrested and held for Georgia authorities.

THE CITIZEN'S DUTY.

It will be too late after Saturday to register for the county election in March. There are thousands of citizens of Fulton who ought to register and vote—who ought to take interest enough in government to exercise that greatest of constitutional rights—who are not on the registration lists at this hour.

Some one has said, and very aptly, that one of our troubles in Georgia is "poor citizenship among good citizens." That is to say, too many citizens who are factors in the business world, prominent in the social world, influential in the cultural world, who are useful in every other way, neglect that imperatively important obligation that we owe to public welfare—the exercise of the franchise to vote.

We complain because a condition in government does not please us. Perhaps we see the drift toward minority rule, toward blocs and cabals and all that sort of thing. We see democracy being undermined and our institutions tottering by reason of an unwholesome political status. And yet we do nothing of a constructive nature toward providing a remedy.

In the city of Atlanta seven or eight thousand citizens do go to the polls, as a rule. A bare majority of them may carry an election—may inflict upon us some policy that means economic embarrassment, if not disaster.

The 25,000 or more other citizens who ought to vote but who do not would be more responsible should such a condition arise. The City club recently launched an active campaign to get citizens to register and vote. The League of Women Voters did the same thing. It ought to be preached from every pulpit, and made the especial business of every civic club, and of every group that is working and planning for the welfare of the people, and for the upbuilding of community spirit and life. It ought to impress itself deep into the hearts and consciences of every citizen who believes in the institutions of a democracy—in a government of and by and for the people. Our government cannot be "of the people" unless the people have a voice in it. It cannot be "for the people" so long as minority groups can swing elections through the indifference of the majority.

This is really a serious problem, and it strikes at every hearthstone. The consciences of citizens should be aroused to what it means—elections through defaults.

Shortly we shall vote on bonds for a comprehensive expansion program in Atlanta. Bonds are difficult to ratify by reason of the constitutional majority required. They are usually defeated by their strongest advocates who take it all out in advocating and then forget the importance of going to the polls and legally registering such advocates. One favorable vote that stays away from the polls goes as far to defeat bonds as two negative votes that are polled.

Register and vote! It is the duty of good citizenship—a duty that cannot be transferred to another, or minimized in importance. The citizen who does not vote deliberately encourages minority government, which is the most outstanding menace confronting us in our public affairs.

"GOOD WILL DAY."

Thursday, February 18, was designated as "Good Will" day by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. It was urged that every business house in Atlanta should have a "get-together" meeting on that day, so that employers and employees, the boss and the office boy, the president and the shipping clerk, could get together, have a speech or two, and get off in a good all-pull-together start for the new year's business. The plan was very successfully launched.

The junior chamber wants the boss to feel that he has a greater interest in how the bookkeeper is getting on, in the office and at home; wants the salesman to feel to a greater extent that the interest of the house is his own interest. In other words, everybody build up the "spirit of the company," to get everybody on the pay roll hustling, not for the pay envelope, but for the good of the business, which means the good of the employee.

With the greater growth of such a spirit, greater production will result, more goods will be sold and shipped, and greater prosperity for Atlanta and Georgia will result. Chairman J. V. Calhoun urged: "Won't you cooperate with us in making this good will day on February 18 a big city-wide event? We suggest that you arrange a meeting of all employees at some convenient time, either at luncheon, just before closing, or in the evening, and have a short program featuring good will."

The junior chamber is to be warmly congratulated for so heartily encouraging this spirit. The fact is, every day should be a "good-will day." The cooperation that is encouraged is really essential to success in any line. The human touch in business is essential. The building of a good-will spirit in every organization is fundamental to good service.

MAINE VISITORS.

Atlanta, with her usual hospitality, gave a warm and cordial greeting to the party of 450 citizens of Maine who stopped here for a few hours Wednesday.

The banquet tendered by the chamber of commerce Wednesday evening was a genial fellowship gathering, at which the south and the north clasped hands in a spirit of brotherhood that has become as proverbial as Atlanta's spirit of enterprise and progress.

Governor Brewster, of Maine, who headed his state's delegation, and Governors Walker, of Georgia, and Brandon, of Alabama, were among the speakers. They were happy in their felicitations, and the Maine people felt truly that they were in the house of their friends.

Atlanta was proud to be the host of this party of splendid citizens from one of the most extreme corners of the nation, and only regretted that their stay could not have been more extended.

THE CIVIC CLUBS.

The civic clubs of Georgia—the Rotary, Kiwanis, Civitan, Lion, Progressive, Cooperative, etc.—are doing a wonderful work in many ways, in their own activities and in cooperating in all big, worthwhile state developments. They serve first of all in creating a spirit of fellowship among citizens—the brotherhood that makes the task, whatever it is, the easier. And then each club usually has an outstanding service in charity or welfare work. And again in progressive material developments.

Says Editor Lawrence:

"Merit will win and the work done by the Georgia association in throwing light on the disaster-creating one-crop cotton system and setting up against it the benefit of diversified farming with the cow, hog and hen as a basis is being generally recognized with the result that far-seeing, patriotic bankers, business men, editors, manufacturers, heads of railroads and others who are not alone interested in Georgia agriculture, but especially so in the mothers and children and their daddies on the farms, are like the Kiwanis and other influential bodies getting at the back of the Georgia association with the noble intent of increasing its power. For that organization's aim is not alone to make the state prosperous through sound farming, but to elevate the lives of those who live on the farm and make them content and happy."

The Georgia association has done a good work. It has given wide and resourceful advertising to Georgia opportunities. It has helped materially to solve the problem of better balanced farm operations. It deserves the encouragement given by the Kiwanis organization.

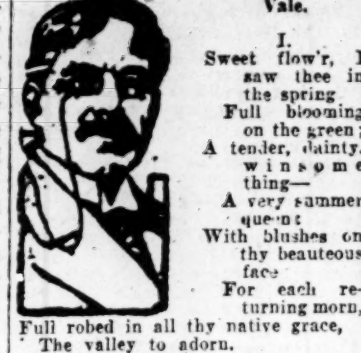

Let us forget what split the nation in 1861, and stand more than ever united under the Stars and Stripes. There is enough narrowness abroad today without going back nearly three-quarters of a century and reviving issues that are not only dead, but deserve to have died.—Columbus Enquirer-Sun.

The Atlanta movement to prevent colored barbers from shaving white men has failed, as it ought to fail. It was a senseless ordinance, and has given Atlanta lots of bad advertising.—Savannah Press.

With the calling of Walker's extra session the Holder-Brown political machine is reported steaming up.—Columbus Ledger.

Just From Georgia

BY FRANK L. STANTON

The Voice of the Vale.
Sweet flow'r, I saw thee in the spring.
Full blooming on the green.
A tender, dainty, winsome thing—
A very summer queen—
With blushes on thy cheeks
And with thy beautiful face.
For each returning morn,
Full robed in all thy native grace,
The valley to adorn.

But spring is gone and summer's o'er
And I review the scene
To find thy charming bloom no more
The glory of the green:
Now, drooped to earth, thy tender
Is sinking to decay.
While o'er thee sweeps the angry storm
Through all the wintry day.

But, hark! A voice borne on the gale
Speaks to my heart the while;
It is the whisper of the vale
Where last I saw thee smile:
It says, thy charms her breast shall
When spring new blooms impart,
Like blushes on a maiden's face
When love first warms her heart.

ALEXANDER SILVEY.
Tallahassee, Fla.

The Albany Herald, discussing road-making plans for this year says: "According to The Los Angeles Times, they will call for the expenditure of nearly $1,250,000,000, which will exceed the amount spent in any previous year. It had been thought that fine progress had been made in the creation of great thoroughfares, but it seems that the soil has merely been scratched. As a result of the motor industry all the roads are being paved to a great extent, and it will ultimately link up virtually all the cities of the nation."

THE FORGOTTEN WORLD.

I.
This is a world that God's forgot.
We plead to Him; He hears it not.
Pray to Him from your bed of pain;
The help you seek is sought in vain.

II.
God does not care; God does not care;
I've prayed to Him in grim despair;
My soul was torn in life's travail;
I prayed to God without avail.

III.
The cycle swings of deadly woe;
God can't relieve, oh, He knows;
He can give help, and He can save;
But will He help beyond the grave?

IV.
Then pray to God on bended knee,
While Satan laughs at you in glee.
Here is a world that God's forgot.
Seek help of Him; He'll heed you not.

The Same Here.

The Arkansas Traveler's idea of the chameleon spirit of the South is the highway speeding, hogging the road, and flouting his contempt for fellow travelers on the highway. It probably is the most common of the South's evils. He's at the sharp curve in the road. Blooey! eternally has him and the innocent in the rear seat. That's the spending of the efforts of a million years in a second."

Habersham Citizen Writes Sound Sense About Road Situation

Editor Constitution: I have been closely following your paper with reference to the road situation in this state. Your efforts are truly worthy of commendation by those who are in favor of progress and not politics.

Your rapier-like thrusts are keenly enjoyed and appreciated for their worth by the most middle class of the state. The road is the throat of the South, and the United States; which is that portion of road (state highway No. 15), lying between Clarksville and the North Carolina line. When you reach North Carolina it is of course, now that Habersham and Rabun have voted bonds, the latter two years ago, we will probably have much better, but even at that it will now be two or three years. All of which supports your contention that our present "system" is wrong. And yet there are those who insist that "everything" is all right. The Lord help us!

If we had had the state unit system the above referred to road would probably have been attended to several years ago, as it penetrates the very heart of Georgia's summertime playground. As it is we have had to wait for the counties to act and as a consequence continue to annihilate the third Commandment beyond recognition.

Your declarations on the conditions of Georgia's roads have been exaggerated in the least. It anything, the present situation, I now have in mind several stretches of highway that were soiled several years ago, but due to heavy increased traffic the soil has practically worn away. And the present highway is a mere shadow of its former self. The fact is, one of these stretches is that one between Gainesville and Lawrenceville via Buford.

The thing that we need is action and not theorizing by stick-wielding politicians who are trying to land an award on a lot of money and conscience, when what we want is possible roads. There is just as much practicality in attempting to prove that black is white, as endeavoring to find anyone who is trying to land an award on a lot of money and conscience, when what we want is possible roads. There is just as much practicality in attempting to prove that black is white, as endeavoring to find anyone who is trying to land an award on a lot of money and conscience, when what we want is possible roads.

Let us forget what split the nation in 1861, and stand more than ever united under the Stars and Stripes. There is enough narrowness abroad today without going back nearly three-quarters of a century and reviving issues that are not only dead, but deserve to have died.—Columbus Enquirer-Sun.

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

New York, February 18.—The typical New York crook differs from the Parisian or London colleague in that he seldom plays a lone hand. He usually travels with a gang. He acknowledges loyalty to a chief, but to nobody else. That loyalty is generally the result of fear. There are gang leaders in the Gotham underworld who have their bodyguards like any emperor or king. "And if any member of the gang double-crosses the chief the bodyguard meets out the punishment."

A brawl in the Paris subterranean world or a quarrel between toughs in London results in a bare-knuckle fight or some vicious kicking. In the jungle quarter of New York such a row ends with a knife thrust, a steel-jacketed bullet or a fatal blow with a piece of lead piping.

There are other elements of difference in the crime situation of these great centers of population. In New York statistics show, only one in seven murderers is caught. The percentage in Paris is nine out of eleven, and London catches 95 per cent of her murderers. Still the New York police is not less efficient. But in Gotham by-standers and eye-witnesses of a murder hesitate a long time before they volunteer information. They are too scared of the vengeance of the gang. Moreover, the police consider the slain gangster usually good riddance and the elimination of another dangerous ruffian.

Battling Siki had many quarrels in Paris. When that individual took his primitive passion for dissipation, brawls and debauchery from the Paris boulevards and the crime haunts of Montmartre and moved to Hell's Kitchen he practically sealed his fate.

In Paris they laughed at his irrepressible bawls antics or they tried to quiet him when he got into one of his demoniacal bully moods. But he could not pull the same stuff, of insulting gangsters, flashing his bankroll in boastful fashion and knocking heads together without impunity in Hell's Kitchen. The type of man he offended, here did not laugh at him, sneer at his ignorance, or call the police.

Siki's murderer looked coldly at the primitive jungle savage and got even. And what it means to get even in the New York underworld was shown by a corpse in a gutter with two bullet holes and a knife stab in the back.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

MY FIRST SHOT OF HASHEESH.

Hasheesh (Indian hemp, cannabis indica) is a drug about which a good deal of romance has been woven. When I was a callow student I was what the novelists call intrigued with the therapeutic action of hasheesh as it was described in the "Diary." I had revised his textbook of therapeutics many times since then—and I'll tell the world he ought to—but the thing that intrigued me was an assertion that hasheesh made the two lobes of the brain act separately, so that one under the effects of the drug could carry on one line of thought with one side of his brain and an entirely separate line with the other. This I felt certain could not be so. That sort of reaction has brought me no end of trouble in this world—but it has also brought me a lot of satisfaction. Well, being a lover of the sun-day evening and my roommate out galloping I concluded to settle the question in a practical way, and slipped over to the drug store and bought an ounce of the finest quality of cannabis indica. I swallowed a full dose and sat down to wait for the grand double-acted cerebral phenomenon. It was about 9 p. m. when I sat down. After I had sat there about six weeks I looked at the time and it was about 10 p. m.—the same night that seemed mighty strange and I began to wonder whether my roommate had gone off on a vacation or if I had decided to get down here again and see whether he could account for the strange lapse of time. I was about to get up and look at the clock when I felt a sudden jerk. I looked at that subject thoughtfully. I might as well be looking up an antidote for cannabis indica while waiting—but I couldn't put my hands on the taxi. I looked at the clock and it was about 11 p. m. I went to the bookshelf and took back with old Hare, and each trip required about eight hours. It seemed I was in a curious dual dream state. ## Amusements

The Atlanta Theater.

But two days remain of the engagement at the Atlanta Theater of the glorious "Blossom Time," the greatest musical triumph of the present day. Performances will be given tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock, with a matinee tomorrow (Saturday) at 2:30 o'clock. The company here presenting this greatest of modern operettas is one that cannot fail to satisfy even the most exacting critic; in fact, the general opinion expressed by those who have revealed in this year's performance is that it is in every way the equal, if not the superior to that given by the magnificent cast heard here last year.

Coming to the Atlanta.

Splendid interest is already being shown in the coming presentation here of "Oh! Oh! Nurse," the musical comedy success which comes to the Atlanta Theater on next Monday night, when it will begin an engagement of four nights, with a matinee Wednesday. "Oh! Oh! Nurse" comes here after a most successful run at Ziegfeld's Cosmopolitan Theater, New York City. Fred Heider, long recognized as "The King of Funsters," is the featured player and is supported by the complete New York company, with a dancing chorus of 20 beautiful girls. Seats are now selling for all performances.

Loew's Grand.

Loew's Grand theater this week is offering one of the best bills of vaudeville of the season and with such a notable picture as "What Happened to Jones," with Reginald Denny, the program is easily one of the most enjoyable of the year. The headline attraction traction on the vaudeville bill is Walter Feh and company of ten entertainers who present a variety act of musical merit. Olive Blodine and Al Raub appear in a laughable comedy absurdity called "Conquered," in which they sing several pretty songs. Calma and Dale are eccentric dancers of unusual ability; Gladys and Venus Portia, two attractive young women, present a pretty posing turn, while Elizabeth Kennedy and Sister offer an amusing series of character impressions.

Rialto Theater

The finest war picture in many months the audiences of the Rialto theater are proclaiming "Three Faces East," which is playing at the Rialto theater this week with Jetta Goudal as the beautiful girl spy. Only in the last few feet of film, in a powerful denouement, are the spectators able to determine whether Miss Goudal is a spy for Germany or England. She is forced to kill her lover or betray her country. The picture will be on view continuously two more days.

The Howard.

"The Grand Duchess and the Waiter," with Adolphe Menjou and Florence Vidor, a screen version of Alfred Savoir's celebrated stage success, in the attraction this week at the Howard theater. It is a funny French comedy dealing with the romance of a wealthy turfman masquerading as a waiter and that of a grand duchess who has fled from her native country on account of a revolution.

Adolphe Menjou plays the part of the disguised waiter, and Florence Vidor portrays the role of the grand duchess. They portray their parts to perfection and cause continuous laughter throughout the picture. "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter" is a picture of a number of novelty dances.

The overture, "William Tell," J. P. Mathieson conducting, is a very pleasing one. The organ solo, "Five Foot Two and Eyes of Blue," played by Melvin P. Ogden at the mighty Wurlitzer, a real comedy and an International News reel completes a splendid program.

Tudor Theater.

One of the best and most refreshing western pictures seen in years comes to the Tudor theater today when Bob Custer appears in his latest F. O. B. starring vehicle, "Man Kusun." The story fairly teems with originality, and is productive of more lively comedy than any previous Custer production. William Branch gets credit for the unique tale of a cowboy who turns reporter on a little cow town paper to please the ambitions of the girl he loves.

Alamo No. 2.

"Wings of Youth," with Ethel Clayton and Madge Bellamy, will be at the Alamo No. 2 today and Saturday. Motion picture fans who like their drama in fine settings will be pleased when they see "Wings of Youth," the Willamson production, which opens at the Alamo No. 2 theater today with Madge Bellamy and Ethel Clayton as the central figures. The picture tells a story of mod-

Eighty-One Theater

Tonight's big night—the mid-night frolic night at the Eighty-One Theater for whites only—the chance to see Martin and Walker, foremost negro comedians whose names became by-words more than a year ago when they appeared in the original "Shuffle Along" company in New York.

Martin and Walker are appearing in "Yes, Sir," a comedy of the "Shuffle Along" show—and "Yes, Sir" is the chief attraction at the frolic which begins tonight at 10:45 o'clock at the Eighty-One Theater.

But these two famous negro comedians aren't the whole works by any means. Not by a jugful. A chorus of dancers, quartets and women comedy song singers will intersperse Walker and Martin's laugh-provoking features.

Tonight's show represents the high-est priced out of negro theater brought to Atlanta and after last week's fine show and big crowd, the management of the playhouse has left nothing undone to assure another great show tonight.

Late Thursday night there were only a small number of good seats available and it is expected that these will be sold early today.

MISS PATRICOLA HEADLINES BILL AT KEITH'S THEATER

Miss Patricola, the scintillating melodist in a cycle of character songs, captured headline honors on a well-balanced five-act bill at E. F. Keith's Forsyth for the last half of the week. Miss Patricola draws unusual applause and at the close of her act she is assisted by Medley and Duprey in a "Sketch for Three."

Medley and Duprey in "Peanuts" or a Little Bit of Everything," came in for second honors and scored a hit. Achilles and Newman in "Old Greek Pastimes" portrayed the real art of strength in handling and balancing weights and balls.

Murphy and Bradley in artistic novelty dances start the program off in a manner pleasing to everyone. Arthur O. May and Helen Kiddoff in "Village Gossip" are especially good. They also present an original rubber jazz dance, known as the "Rubber Glide."

Pathe News and Aesop's Fables complete the bill.

Six Persons Injured In Series of Crashes Of Autos Thursday

Six persons, two whites and four negroes, were slightly injured in Thursday's series of motor accidents in the city.

A. P. Jackson, who said he resided at a local hotel, was knocked down by an automobile at Spring and Luckie streets early Thursday night. Jackson was crossing Spring street when the machine, driven by A. H. Johnson, 358 Ponce de Leon avenue, struck him. Patrolman George F. Cole and R. R. Hutcheson, who investigated the accident, reported that Jackson was only slightly hurt, receiving minor cuts and bruises. No case was made against Johnson.

Severely cut about the face and hands as a result of being knocked from his bicycle by a speeding automobile, Finis Neal, 11, of 510 South Pryor street, was treated at Grady hospital Thursday afternoon.

He was unable to tell doctors at the hospital who was driving the car and no report of the accident was filed with police.

Two negro boys were slightly injured at Edgewood and Hilliard street when struck down by an auto driven by L. V. Shelnett, of Forest Park, who reported the accident to Acting Captain W. P. Reed. Shelnett told police the negroes were skating on Hilliard street and suddenly turned down into the path of his car. No charge was made against him.

A negro man was knocked down while walking on McDaniel street, Ralph Mitchell, of 28 Dwyer street, driver of the car, told police he stopped and offered to take the negro to the hospital but the negro declined. An unidentified negro was expected to result from the friendly rivalry being displayed from the start.

Other members of the club will contest for the prizes for the best single pig raised this year by the members.

Seminary Girls Race Train

Singer's Mate Promises Surprises in Concert Tonight

To Greet Galli-Curci Here

With a smile from Galli-Curci at stake, five automobile loads of Washington seminary beauties outran the Piedmont limited in a race from Brookwood to the Terminal station Thursday afternoon. The girls came to the famous singer to Atlanta and to present her with a huge bouquet of roses.

The girls, with several hundred other Galli-Curci admirers in Hartsford, had waited at the station nearly an hour for the belated fast train, planning an ovation for the singer to greet her with the warmth of Atlanta's welcome for her concert at the city auditorium tonight.

Hesitating only a moment to discharge a few pieces of baggage, the train sped on, leaving student delegations from Washington seminary, Oglethorpe, Georgia Tech, Emory and other local colleges, reception committees from the chamber of commerce, appointed by President W. D. Hartsford, from the Atlanta Music club, headed by Mrs. Cliff C. Hatcher from the Atlanta Woman's club, and an escort of mounted police to watch its fast receding silhouette in disappointed surprise.

The disappointment was only for an instant, however. Miss Laura Candler, charming daughter of Asa G. Candler, a spokesman for the seminary delegation, clasped her bouquet tightly in her arms and led a mad dash of young girlhood up the steps of the station and out to Peachtree road where as many as could borrow or commandeered cars set off in pursuit of the speeding train.

Down Peachtree and into Spring street they dashed, wheeling into the Terminal station in time to greet the star before she was whisked away in another automobile to her apartments at the Hotel Baltimore. There a more formal welcome was tendered her by reception committees with a few more of the college girls who had missed the race to the Terminal station.

With Galli-Curci were Homer Samuels, her husband and pianist, Manuel Benquer, lyric flute accompanist, and Jack Salter, former popular Atlanta who, with Lawrence Evans, also of Atlanta origin, is manager for Galli-Curci. Lawrence Tibbett, Tito Schipa and other stars.

"Please don't be disappointed that things went wrong," the famous diva pleaded. "I will make you forget it tomorrow night. I have been waiting eagerly for three years for another chance to sing to Atlanta and I am so happy that the time has come that I just think I will sing like two Galli-Curci."

The singer's formal program, including operatic arias and concert classics, need not discourage attendance of those who make a point of avoiding "highbrow" music. Homer Samuels assured the group at the Baltimore.

DISABLED VETERANS'

CHIEF HERE TODAY

Preparations for the annual convention of Disabled American Veterans of the World War, to be held in Atlanta June 21-26, will be made today and Saturday when John Mahan, of Cincinnati, Ohio, national commander, is here to lay plans before local officials of Woodrow Wilson chapter No. 1, which will sponsor the convention. Mr. Mahan will arrive in Atlanta at 8:30 o'clock this morning.

It will be the first time that a disabled world war veteran convention has been held in the south and more than 10,000 delegates are expected to visit Atlanta during six-day convention, according to officials in charge. At Omaha last summer, the Atlanta delegates captured the 1926 convention for this city, after keen competition with five other cities, the final ballot narrowing down to Atlanta and Chicago, the delegates coming out on top through vigorous campaigning by the local delegates and the supplementary invitations and hospitality bids from Atlanta organizations and civic leaders.

Mr. Mahan will be met at the train by Mayor Walter A. Sims and other city officials; J. K. Finch, commander of Woodrow Wilson chapter of Disabled World War veterans; members of the American Legion, and Service Star Legion, the woman's branch of the American Legion.

The first of the meetings will be held tonight at the Ansley hotel, when a banquet will be given by the local chapter in honor of the visitor. According to officials of the chapter, special features to be put on in Atlanta when the convention meets here in June will include a monster parade. In the parade will be one battalion of one-legged veterans, another battalion of blind veterans who will be led by children, and several other similar features.

BULLOCH COUNTY FORMS POULTRY ASSOCIATION

Statesboro, Ga., February 18.—(Special.)—At a meeting of the poultrymen, held last Saturday afternoon, the Bulloch Poultry association was organized and the following officers were elected: W. H. Smith, president; Frank Smith, vice president; Lewis Atkins, secretary and treasurer; F. E. Mitchell, poultry specialist.

Mr. Mitchell, poultry specialist, told of what other poultry associations over the state were doing in the way of promoting shows, in marketing chickens and eggs, storing eggs and purchasing feed, cooperatively. He also commented favorably on the progress of the poultry industry in Bulloch county.

The members of the association expect to raise the funds to continue the services of the specialist for two days each month. The next meeting of the association will be held at the courthouse on Friday afternoon, February 26, at 3 o'clock.

According to officials of the chapter, special features to be put on in Atlanta when the convention meets here in June will include a monster parade. # TECH ALMOST CERTAIN OF ENTERING TOURNAMENT

EDITED BY

Jackets Expecting Powerful Baseball Squad This Season

Hard Work For Schedule Which Probably Will Include About 30 Contests Starts Saturday—Three New Pitchers Will Report.

One of the strongest baseball teams to represent Georgia Tech on the diamond in several years will get down to earnest practice Saturday at the new field which has been built just across the street from Grant field. Preparation will be started for one of the hardest schedules ever outlined for a Southern Conference baseball team. More than 30 contests probably will be booked, according to advance information.

Three new pitchers from the freshman team of last year are expected to add strength to the varsity squad. They are Edwards and Gaston, right-handers, and Claison, left-hander. Sneed and Conn, both right-handers, are holdovers from last year. Conn was the only Tech pitcher to defeat Georgia in the four games played by the schools last spring.

The new field, where baseball will be played, has been pronounced the equal of the grounds at Spiller's park by persons who have viewed it. The old wooden stands which formerly adjoined Grant field have been moved across the street to the new diamond and included in the new space for colored fans. Thus Tech becomes the first college in the south to get aside a portion of its grandstand for negro baseball patrons.

Grant field now is being used for spring football practice, but just as soon as that has been concluded the lacrosse team, which now is being formed, will begin practice for the eight games which have been scheduled. Four of these are with Georgia and the rest with Fort Benning. The schedule for that sport probably will stop right there, for there are no other lacrosse teams in the south. Dr. J. B. Crenshaw, director of athletics at Tech, will coach the lacrosse team. He won his letter in that sport while a student at Johns Hopkins.

WAR VETERANS WILL SPONSOR LOTZ PROGRAM

New promoters will make their entry into the local game Tuesday night at the auditorium, when the Disabled Veterans of the World War sponsor a series of bouts that promise slugging action from going to go, under the able leadership of Billy Lotz, who has been appointed matchmaker. Atlantans who have insisted that Hollis Sullivan was getting nothing but set-up will have a chance to see him perform against a rugged, two-fisted citizen in Benny Ray, of Jacksonville, whose record bespeaks class. Ray is already known to Tech fans hereabouts by reason of numerous appearances in Macon, Columbus, Augusta and other Georgia cities as well as practically all the fight towns in Florida.

According to Professor W. H. Evans, who presides over the pugilistic destinies of Hollis Ray, is the toughest boy he has yet picked for his protégé, which can readily be seen by the latter's record. He has fought such men as Jordan Sheppard twice, Dick Baker three times, Frenchy Hollis twice, Baby Strubling, Kid Earl, Red Keenan, Chief Octavero and Kid Peck, to say nothing of others regarded as capable of carrying for themselves inside the hempen enclosure. From all outward appearances, Sullivan seems to be up against a genuine test this time. However, he is training faithfully and will be in top-notch condition for the invader.

Other bouts arranged for Tuesday night are Larry Ayers of Atlanta against Judge Horning of Savannah, and Charlie Wilson against Eddie Harris. The latter two are local middleweights.

It was a closely contested match which kept the crowd more than 4,000 fans highly excited. In winning, Jackson not only takes the championship, but also a first prize of $100 along a diamond metal. Mossman received $250 as second prize.

Rank Jackson Wins Horseshoe Title Meet

St. Petersburg, Fla., February 18. (AP)—Rank Jackson, Kellerton, Iowa, came back this afternoon and regained the horseshoe championship of the world. He won two of the three games from Orren Mossman, of Eldora, Iowa, champion the last two years in a play-off of the tie which terminated the regular championship play.

OLYMPIC STAR WILL LECTURE ON WORLD TOUR

BY CARTER BARRON.

Charlie Paddock, world's champion runner and record holder, is arriving in Atlanta today, and will give his lecture, "The Man on the Mark," at the Wesley Memorial hall, at Auburn and Ivy streets. The lecture will begin at 8 o'clock. Paddock was invited here by the Students' Lecture association of Emory university to talk to the track squads of Emory, Georgia Tech, Oglethorpe and others interested in knowing how the "fastest human" travels so fast.

A list of Paddock's lectures has been a member of two Olympic teams, and twice has toured the world lecturing on track athletics and demonstrating the methods of producing the body through space with the maximum of speed with the minimum expenditure of energy. His talk will include his experiences while on the world tours, the methods of world's champions in every event, the temperament of the different nationalities and the intimate knowledge of such stars as Lenglen, Tilden and Dandridge. Also will be in general of the rules of health that should be followed by men and women who wish to take the best possible care of the human machine.

Denny, also will speak in general of the rules of health that should be followed by men and women who wish to take the best possible care of the human machine. Paddock's lectures would be a roll call of the world's famous men and women. He has met the rulers of the different countries of the world, and has witnessed the different armies in the world war. Stars of the screen are among his intimate acquaintances, including Douglas Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin. On one occasion Paddock, Chaplin and Douglas Fairbanks participated in a hurdle race on the coast. Paddock was the fastest, Doug the second, and Chaplin the most graceful over the sticks.

Charlie Paddock's extensive traveling does not suffer by his manner of expressing what he has witnessed. He probably will tell of that famous champagne breakfast in Berlin in honor of Alan Helrich's birthday, of his visit to Montmartre in Paris and of the attractive Swedish girls they met in the country where it is day-time until 11 p. m. and where dawn breaks a little after midnight.

Marist Loses To Commercial

BY CLARENCE NIXON.

Commercial High captured the prep league dope bucket Thursday when, after an extra period of five minutes, they defeated the strong Marist team. The victory was 21 to 20. At the same time the Purple Hurricane of Boys' High handed Fulton High a 28-12 defeat on the basketball court. Fulton High put up a hard fight against the Purple Hurricane, but could not stand the rapid-fire work of the victors. Both teams lost to Marist. Marist played basketball from the first to the last until the final whistle. The Typists took hold of the game from the start. The score at the half was 10 to 6 in favor of Commercial. In the extra period the Typists staged a hot battle and managed to squeeze out with a victory.

Captain Baker, star of Commercial High, took high-point honors with 13 points. M. Williams, right forward for Marist, came second with eight points.

The High-Marietta game was postponed until tonight and is to be played in Marietta. The Bluebirds of U. S. B. and the G. M. A. cagers have an engagement in Atlanta tonight in the Cotton States Basketball tournament. Decatur will wait until Monday to play its game with the Bluebirds.

"I sometimes think," Hargrave reflected, as he sat up in his chair after a long silence, "that if one had to fix upon one particular spot as typical of the spirit of Monte Carlo one would choose the Cafe de Paris between 12 and 1 o'clock."

"What gets me," Pellingham, who was suffering from a remarkably bad headache, expounded, "is that the people all seem so amazingly fit every morning. Look at them all round us now. There isn't one of them who looks as though he had been out of bed after midnight, and as for having ever lost a packet, as some of them must have done, well, all I can say is you can't spot the losers."

Violet glanced around in mute appreciation. The hum of conversation and the laughter almost drowned the throbbing melodies of the gypsy band. Waiters were hurrying about on every side. Scraps of conversation floated here and there, invitations, gossip, a tender word or two. The sun was streaming down from a flawless sky, its heat pleasantly tempered by the faintest of sea breezes. The very air seemed full of sweet and expectant life. Hargrave, notwithstanding a certain gravity which had remained with him since his visit to the Villa Miramar, was filled once more as acutely as ever with the intense desire of living. Violet—in a wonderful gown of rose-colored crepe de chine and the smartest of hats—was seated by his side, blissfully and confidently happy. In half an hour's time Hargrave was to see the local physician. She was full of boundless optimism.

"There's only one person here who looks in the least unhappy," she declared, pointing to a man who was seated on the outskirts of the little crowd. "He hasn't anything to drink. He simply sits and stares ahead of him. I am not at all sure it isn't the man you tried to speak to in the Sporting Club, Sir Hargrave, and who disappeared."

Pellingham, whose glance had been one of the idlest curiosity, suddenly sprang to his feet.

"My God, look out!" he exclaimed. "He's going to shoot himself."

The man whom Violet had indicated seemed to have emerged abruptly from a trance. He sat up and looked stealthily around. His hand had crept into his right-hand pocket. There was a flash of metal in the sunlight, a smothered report, scarcely heard in the hubbub of music and voices, and the man half slipped from his chair. He hung there limply for a moment, a pathetic-looking object, one leg upon the ground, his arms over the sides of his chair, his head drooping sideways. Then he collapsed as the crowd closed about him. Hargrave was just in time to keep Violet from turning round.

"What was it?" she demanded, seeing the people rush to the spot. "A man shot himself," Hargrave told her, gravely. "Curiously enough, you were right. It was Horridge. But I don't understand."

It was as though a miracle were being performed on the spot where the tragedy had occurred. In a matter of a few seconds the empty chair was back in its place, the little crowd of people were dispersing and returning to their places, and even the ever-watchful guardians of the scene with their chasty burden had disappeared. The music had never once faltered; the laughter and gay babel of voices recommenced almost immediately. Pellingham, who had been one of the first to reach the spot, returned presently to his chair.

"Well," he remarked, "so long as someone had to commit suicide, I should say the right man had done it. He ought to have been in prison long ago."

Associated Press Honors Hero Of Sea Rescue

New York, February 18.—(AP)—Captain George Fried, commander of the steamship President Roosevelt, was greeted today as an honorary staff reporter of the Associated Press and presented with a gold watch in recognition of the wireless story he sent describing the rescue of the crew of the Antiope in mid-Atlantic last month.

The presentation was made by Jack S. Elliott, chief general manager of the Associated Press.

Making the presentation, Mr. Elliott gave Captain Fried this welcome: "In the name of the Associated Press I give you your new role of reporter and I assure you there is no higher title in the newspaper profession. Despite your worries and responsibilities during the long hours attending the rescue of the Antiope, you had the foresight to realize the keen public interest that was everywhere following the efforts of your crew of brave men to snatch the helpless British sailors from ravenous seas."

"Putting your thought into action, the Associated Press became the medium to convey the thrilling tale to the far corners of the earth."

"Your terse worded alograms, giving the progress of the efforts under way—first, of futile attempts at rescue, and then, of your crew's sacrifice their lives in the cause of humanity and duty—and then, after 88 hours, the thrilling fact that all the endangered Antiope men had been saved, brought to an anxious public a graphic picture of what men can do when fired by duty and inspired by leaders in whom they have confidence."

In behalf of that public and the Associated Press, I thank you. We have a method of recognizing an extraordinary accomplishment on the part of a member of the staff of the Associated Press—the giving of a souvenir, the same in all cases. Acclaiming you as a new member of the staff, it is my pleasure to give you such a memento—a watch suitably inscribed. You may accept this membership with assurance that you are in an organization that recognizes only honorable reporting—the kind that brings a warm welcome tomorrow from the sources of today's news."

"Carry this watch, Captain Fried, and with it the affection and esteem of your fellow reporters of the Associated Press."

Historical Society May Offer Prizes For Georgia History

Savannah, Ga., February 18.—(Special).—In his annual report to the Georgia Historical society, which yesterday held its 87th yearly meeting, Major W. W. Gordon, president, recommended the offering of three prizes to Georgians to stimulate interest in the society and develop interest in Georgia history. He recommended one prize of $50 for the best historical article, $50 for the best historical poem written by a Georgian and $50 for the best drama written on a Georgia historical subject and submitted to the society.

Major Gordon was reelected president and all other officers reelected also. Alfriend Considers Governorship Race In State This Year

Jackson, Ga., February 18.—(Special).—There is a probability that Kyle T. While attending the sixth district high school conference held in Jackson, Mr. Alfriend admitted that he had the matter under consideration. A number of years ago, Professor Alfriend represented Baldwin county in the general assembly and is well known over the state.

JUNIOR LEAGUERS TAKE HONORS AT FIFTY CLUB SHOW

Atlanta Society Girls Find Great Pleasure in Work During These Lenten Days

BY BEVERLY BURGESS.

Junior leaguers to the front again! And this time in connection with the Fifty club! Can you think of a rarer combination or one which could possibly mean a greater evening of fun and delight than the combination of such forces as these would mean?

You know already that this club is formed of 50 congenial friends of long standing who have banded themselves together for—let's let them down as easily as possible by stating their purposes and hopes negatively—no purpose of saving the nation from its manifold menaces was theirs in organization!

Once a week these Fifty boys meet! Once every short while they entertain their lady friends and always these occasions are unique and interesting—to put it mildly!

Last Night's Program.

Barnard Boykin is president of this rare group of "good fellows."

Last night at their performance at the Woman's club—never have I seen such a mass of people packed into this auditorium—Mr. Boykin espied a figure in the audience whose very presence itself is suggestive of one thing largely and that is a royal court of entertainers with no little local reputation as such—Annie Harrington and her well-known Junior Leaguers.

Immediately Mrs. Harrington was assailed for a lead in the evening's entertainment.

Demurely and modestly hers at first was a refusal.

Mr. Boykin would brook no denial. So, to prove the Junior Leaguers' prowess and versatility and knowing that these were the Atlanta girls who sustained her far-famed notoriety for being always well-dressed, Mrs. Harrington decided to respond, announcing that as long as the Fifty club insisted, she would put on one of the League's famous fashion shows, feeling sure the girls would sustain their reputation as being among the world's best dressed!

Personnel Assembles.

And standing on the stage, Mrs. Harrington called the Leaguers just as she found them scattered in the audience.

And in this response the house fairly came down!

Costuming there was and one which would not only sustain the reputation of these girls—if not the one for being faultlessly and tastefully attired—certainly one for being the best sports and the most versatile entertainers imaginable!

A new role did they present themselves in—that of burlesque queens!

Prepared were they for this little ruse by having on the most preposterous costumes one ever saw.

According to form there were the various types of the well-planned fashion show of Lucille proportions.

Elaine Robinson Dickey presented the up-to-date "Motor Girl."

In Louise Inman McNeil the "Golf-er" was seen in all golf glory possible.

In full riding togs was Marian Darrah, no detail omitted.

Unto the stately Mrs. Floyd McRae was assigned the role of blushing bride with Harriet Shoulen and Mrs. Howard McCall as little flower girls.

Many there were in addition to those who were uproariously funny.

Surely the mission of the Fifty club—that of beguiling its members from sordidness and prosiness—was never, or absolutely filled to the very letter of the law than on this occasion when the Junior Leaguers took the boards.

Female Atlanta.

There is much of talent and charm amongst the girls and women of all ages in this wonderful Atlanta town!

In the younger grouping of girls lying dormant and in others being developed. In a party of young girls who have recently returned from a year or more spent abroad studying.

It is gratifying to learn that these girls have really found themselves, and are working out their own salvation.

Martha Maddox, one of these, was born an artist!

She knew she had this talent before she went to France.

Rather, her friends knew this, supposing that would be too much to ask the demure little Martha to admit.

Commercial art has she pursued during these school days, and now she has a lovely position in one of our loveliest department stores which in no wise interferes with her unprecedented belle-dorm in the social ranks of which she is such a charming figure.

Mary Middleton, who belongs to this same group of girls who studied abroad for a long while, also is finding time for half a day's serious endeavors in an up-to-date position.

Not only do these worth-while girls find time for this work, but their doing so gives them a very much saner aspect in the eyes of their hundreds of beaux.

"That is the kind of wife I am hunting," Frank Armistead was heard to remark, "only one request I have to make—that she does not disturb me on her way out to work each morning."

"I love my work," says Martha Maddox, and if one could see the amount of real talent locked up in this girl's pencil and brush one would be convinced that it will be a difficult thing for anything to supersede this interest in her life!

The GILDED ROSE

BY

CHAPTER XI.

Recovery.
"Dead? Who? Quick, tell me!" Old Annie had left home with Rosilyn, and Rosilyn had driven off in the new two-seater, which was reckless of her, in that she was a novice at the wheel. "Miss Rosilyn. The car overturned."
"Good God! Where?" Landis had flung the side-door open and was hauling the old woman into the machine. "Quick, tell me! Which direction?"
"Along this road... about a mile... I've been running for help."
He released the clutch and the car bounded forward.
In less than two minutes, he slowed up, for there, at the side of the road, way, lay an overturned two-seater, and 10 yards or so ahead of it, the crumpled figure of a girl.
Landis made a quick examination. She was stunned, but not dead. The heart was beating. Between them, they got Rosilyn into the bigger car, and Landis drove at lightning speed back to the marshland inn.
He laid her on the big couch in the living room and called up at once for the local doctor—the same man who had attended Rosilyn's father when he died.
But before the medico arrived, Rosilyn was conscious.
"My head! It aches so!" she wearily whispered to the anxious young husband who bent over her so solicitously. "Just let me rest."
He sat beside her on the wide divan, his fingers on her pulse, and her soft hair tumbled against his sleeve, while old Annie who, though shaken by the accident, was uninjured, hustled to get a bed ready against the doctor's arrival.
When the medico came and the necessary examination had been made, he said to Landis reassuringly:

"She'll be all right in a few days' time, if she rests, and sees no one but yourself. She's lucky for her that bruise isn't half an inch further up, or she'd certainly have been killed! Just keep her quiet, and I'll be round first thing in the morning. Meantime, some drops of this," he produced a bottle from his bag—"every two hours if the head hasn't stopped aching. But she'll sleep all right enough, after I've given her a draught."
Rosilyn, like a tired but obedient child, opened her eyes when the medicine was given her.
Landis carried her upstairs to the bed that Annie had prepared.
"Good morning, little lady! Feeling better?" She awoke to great patches of sunlight on the bed and walls, and Landis bending over her.
The recollection of last night's disaster came back to her.
"Is Annie all right?" Was her first anxious query, not realizing at the moment how odd it was that her husband should be here with her.
"Annie's as right as rain. Can you take some breakfast? I'm going to have mine with you, if you'll allow me?"
He disappeared, and presently returned with a small table, which he placed at the side of the bed nearest the invalid.
Then he made the coffee.
"I don't want to ask you any questions, child, because I haven't got the right to ask them," he said awkwardly, when Rosilyn had drunk her coffee, and, looking rather frail, but infinitely happier than she had done for several days (she knew not why) was lying back upon the pillows. "But will you tell me why you chose to come to this place, with no one but old Annie? Will you tell me what brought you here?"
She turned her clear, frank gaze on him.
"I was unhappy. I was in the way at Royal Cliff. No I wanted to be alone, and think things out."
"Was it I who made you unhappy?" His voice was very low, but vibrant with real feeling.
She replied:
"It was I who made you unhappy, because you never loved me, Landis. I came here to try and make up my mind to free you from this marriage."
"Rosilyn!"
"I can't bear to be a drag upon you."
He bent over to look into her eyes. "Who told you that you were a drag? Who influenced you to come here? Tell me, Rosilyn, was Rupert Briscoe talking to you?"
She flushed hotly.
"He did say I ought to go away for a time—because of that poor dancing girl who killed herself—she loved you so."
"Briscoe said that, did he?" Rosilyn nodded.
"Then it's untrue. It was Briscoe whom Marietta Fernandez loved, and it was because he'd given her up that she killed herself. I barely knew her. Now tell me—were you aware that Briscoe himself came here last night, to await your arrival?"
The girl in the bed gave a genuine stare of amazement.
"Here? To the inn? How? Why?"
"Had you no idea he was coming?" persisted Landis.
The astonished look was still upon her face as she replied, gravely: "Of course not!"
Tomorrow: Briscoe's Fate.

New York, February 18.—(AP)—The near month situation was the center of interest in the cotton market again today. Reports of holding figures out of the local stock and the approach of the first notice day, were considered responsible for further covering by March shorts, which raised the price up to 20.15, or 11 points net higher. New crop months were slow to follow the advance, but October sold up to 18.25, or 3 points net higher.

The close was several points off from the best under realizing, with March quoted at 20.15 and October at 18.16. The general market closed steady net 7 points higher to 5 points lower.

The opening was steady at an advance of 5 points, net, of 3 points. Buying developed on relatively steady Liverpool cables and after a little irregularity, prices did better on the demand for larger quantities, which was attributed largely to covering by New Orleans or Liverpool markets.

May sold up to 19.63 during midday, the net advanced 8 to 11 points on old crop positions. The new crop sold 2 to 3 points net higher. There was probably some buying of new crop months on apprehensions that rains reported in the south would delay early farm work, but it was supplied by sales against purchases of the old crop positions.

Trading was more active than recently, but the volume of business tapered off on the advance and the closing reactions of some 5 or 6 points from the best were due to comparatively small offerings.

The local certificated stock is now down to 19,500 bales, according to figures published today and 19,000 bales on the first March notice day, very few tenders are expected. Little or nothing has been heard of shipments from the south for delivery next month. The increase in old crop premiums today was accounted for by rumors that there was still cotton on the coast outstanding in the near months.

Exports for the day totaled 16,741 bales, making 5,788,587 so far this season. Port receipts: United States port stocks, 1,403,522; United States port stocks, 1,403,522.

SPOTS IN NEW YORK.

New York, February 18.—(AP)—Spot cotton quiet; middling, 20.65.

AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, February 18.—(AP)—The cotton market today developed only a little activity and prices fluctuated narrowly. The undertone was steady due to price-fixing by spinners and a little trade demand for near months.

After an early decline on prospects for a return of fair weather in the Gulf, prices rallied and late in the morning showed advances of 10 to 13 points from the lows on near months. Some of this gain was lost during afternoon owing to a realization of sustained supplies and to rumors that a considerable amount of cotton would probably be shipped from the south to New York for delivery on March contracts, thereby relieving the tension in that month.

The close was steady at net gains of 1 to 3 points on near months and net losses of 1 to 5 points on more distant positions.

Following a slight gain at the opening on good Liverpool cables the market eased off 6 points, March to 18.92 and July to 18.39, which were the lows of the day. The market then rallied on moderate buying and near month March traded as high as 19.55. May at 19.05 and July at 18.48, or 9 to 10 points above the lows and 10 to 13 points above the close of yesterday. The market eased off about 7 points during the afternoon trading and finally closed nearer the lows than the highs. While the weather report showed considerable rain in the belt the forecast was for a return of fair or colder weather, hence traders contended that the rains would only prove a short interruption to new crop preparations.

Exports for the day totaled 16,741 bales, making 5,788,587 so far this season. Port receipts: United States port stocks, 1,403,522; United States port stocks, 1,403,522.

RETAIL FOOD PRICES DROPPED ONE PER CENT

Washington, February 18.—(AP)—Retail food prices declined almost 1 per cent during the month ending January 15, the bureau of labor statistics reported today, while wholesale prices for 404 commodities during January were virtually unchanged from the December levels. Since January 15 of 1925, however, retail prices have increased nearly 6 1/2 per cent, the bureau said, and 67 per cent since January, 1913.

In 37 of 51 cities included in the report, retail food prices decreased during the month ending January 15, with Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, San Francisco and Seattle leading with a 3 per cent drop. Charleston, S. C., with a 3 per cent rating, led 11 cities in which prices increased, while in Milwaukee, Pittsburgh and St. Louis no price change was reported. The bureau's index number of 404 commodities at wholesale prices registered 136.0 for January, compared with 136.2 for December. The January figure is 21.2 per cent under the mark for the same month of last year. Farm products, clothing materials, metals, drugs and house furnishings goods declined slightly in January.

Retail prices during the month ended January 15 decreased on 12 articles, ranging from 19 per cent on strictly fresh eggs to less than five-tenths of 1 per cent on macaroni. On 21 articles prices increased, cabbage leading with 22 per cent, potatoes next with 12 per cent, while 10 other articles of daily consumption recorded no change.

Total stock sales, 1,362,900 shares.

New York, February 18.—(AP)—The main body of stocks continued to drift within narrow and irregular limits in today's market but sharply contrasting movements took place in a number of specialties. Buoyancy of American Can, General Electric and Texas Gulf Sulphur was offset by the weakness of Marine preferred and other shippers. Total sales of 1,362,900 shares were only slightly larger than those of yesterday.

Stiffening of the call money rate from 4 3/4, the renewal figure to 5 per cent checked the strong rally which started in the last hour of trading. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged. Several favorable dividend announcements were made during the day, the Texas Gulf Sulphur company raising its annual rate from $8 to $10; the Railway Spring company placing its new stock on a $4 basis, equivalent to $12 on the old which paid $10, including an extra of $2; last year, and United Paper Board declaring a quarterly of 50 cents, the only payment since last July. Texas Gulf Sulphur stock closed nearly 5 points higher to 140, Railway Steel Spring showed a net gain of 2 points at 66 and United Paper Board yielded 3 1/4 of a point to 33 1/2.

American Can showed a net gain of 1 1/2 points at 33 1/2 after establishing a record high price for all time at 33 1/4. General Electric soared nearly 11 points to a new top at 385 3/4 on persistent rumors that the directors would authorize a stock split-up at their meeting in Boston next week, but it settled back to 382 1/4 at the close. American Brake Shoe preferred jumped 8 1/4 points to 128 1/4, and net gains of three points or more were recorded by Burroughs Adding Machine, Homestead Mining, Nash Motors, Pressed Steel Car preferred and Tobacco Products.

Heavy accumulation of the Tidewater Oil issues was based on rumors of impending developments involving the Associated Oil company, but whether it involves a merger of those properties was not revealed. Tidewater common closed 1 7/8 higher at 88 1/4 and the preferred scored an extreme gain of more than three points at 101 5/8, yielding fractionally from the high at the close. Associated Oil showed a small fractional gain at 58 5/8.

Shorts were again driven to cover in some of the motor shares. Jordan was run up nearly four points to 63 1/4, and then eased nearly a point from the high, and Hudson closed 1 1/4 higher at 118 3/4 on total transactions of nearly 100,000 shares.

Heavy selling of Marine preferred, which broke 7 points to 37, followed the publication of a statement by President P. A. S. Franklin that the freight situation is not at all encouraging, and by the circulation of unconfirmed rumors that the company failed to earn enough to cover its depreciation last year. Other ship yields yielded in sympathy. Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies dropping 3 5/8 points to 52 1/2 and American International Corporation closing nearly 2 points lower at 43 3/4.

Selling of Pan-American Petroleum issues reflected speculative uneasiness over the Mexican situation. Marked heaviness also was shown by Devoe and Reynolds, Fairbanks Morse, Otis Steel preferred and F. G. Schuttick.

Rails held fairly steady with a brisk demand for the Seaboard Air Line issues, based on the proposed construction of a new Florida railroad as the chief feature. Cotton was 7 points higher to 5 lower with final quotations off from the best on realizing. Coffee futures moved up 10 to 17 points on reports that the supply of Rio coffee here for delivery on March contracts had been reduced by sales for consumption. Raw sugar advanced 1/32 of a cent a point, 3 1/2 cents, the outstanding developments in the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling

BAKING AND COAL SHARESTURNWEAK

New York, February 18.—(AP)—Confused price movements again characterized today's curb market. Trading, which again was monopolized by professional operators, showed another falling off in volume. Some of the recent liquidation was attributed to the stricter margin requirements imposed by many houses on curb securities, particularly those which have not been sufficiently seasoned.

Selling pressure again was exerted against the bakery issues, Continental Baking "B" and General Baking "A" losing 1 1/2 points, respectively. Coal shares turned slightly reactionary on reports of disturbances in connection with the resumption of anthracite mining. Glen Alden dropped 1 1/2 points to 100 and Lehigh Valley Coal certificates closed nearly a point higher at 43 1/8.

Oil shares were featureless. South American issues pointed upward in the early trading but were unable to maintain their gains. Heavy trading took place in Trumbull Steel which recently has been mentioned in merger rumors, but the stock closed fractionally lower at 12 5/8. Foundation Foreign "A" rallied 3 points to 36 and a good demand developed for Gillette Safety Razor, Goodyear Tire and Richmond Radiator (new). Electrical Refrigeration issues held steady.

Irregular fluctuations again characterized the public utilities but the main trend was upward. American Gas and Electric and Commonwealth closed at net gains of 2 1/4 and 1 3/4 points, respectively.

Dry Goods. New York, February 18.—Light weight sheetings today were sold ahead comfortably through March on leading numbers that are being used for smocks. Print cloths ruled quiet, with some easing reported on late delivery goods. Printed fabrics in cotton, rayon and cotton and silk and cotton were active. Wholesalers report a steady trade from retailers. Little new business was reported for late deliveries of men's wear suitings, but overcoatings did well in some quarters. Fine dress goods of a specialty character were scarce for quick delivery, a strike in large mills having disrupted shipments. Raw silk dropped sharply in Yokohama, but remained steady here, due to rising exchange. Silk goods were in steady demand, especially printed lines. Wholesalers report a steady demand from retailers for goods for immediate shipment, but are still unable to obtain long-term business on staples or fancies.

Sugar. New York, February 18.—Raw sugar was steadier today with prices 1/32 cent higher at 4 1/2, duty paid. At this level 65,000 bags of Cuban for early March shipment and 7,000 bags of Philippine, due March 10, were sold to a local operator. Early gains of 3 to 4 points in raw futures, as a result of covering and renewed outside buying, inspired by the steadiness of the spot market, were lost later under liquidation and selling by Cuban interests. Final prices were unchanged to 1 point net lower: March 2 1/4; May 2 1/4; July 2 1/4; September 2 1/4; December 2 1/4. While no changes occurred in refined as 5.20 to 5.25 for fine granulated, it was reported that some refiners were accepting business in certain localities as low as 5.10, trading on the whole was light and limited to nearby requirements.

Rubber. New York, February 18.—Closing: New York rubber exchange—Rubber: firm; smoked-ribbed sheets, spot, 61 1/2; March, 59 1/2; May, 58 1/2; April-June, 58 1/2. New York rubber exchange: Rubber: firm; smoked-ribbed sheets, spot, 61 1/2; March, 59 1/2; May, 58 1/2; April-June, 58 1/2.

Fear of Water Keeps Statler Ever on Land

Augusta, Ga., February 18.—(AP)—E. M. Statler, millionaire hotel operator, will never put to sea again. He made this announcement last night when he said he had given up hope of ever seeing again his yacht, Miramar, or its crew, which disappeared in a storm off the south Atlantic coast in November.

Mr. Statler was here en route to Florida in an automobile with Duncan McLeod, hotel operator of Buffalo, N. Y.

He had ordered the Miramar to proceed to Florida where he would meet it and spend the winter aboard her in Florida waters. This had been his custom, he said, for two decades. Along with the 100-foot steel vessel, which was said to have been the last word in yacht luxury, was a 40-foot gasoline launch used for trips between the docks and the yacht.

The vessel put in at Charleston, S. C., for supplies a few days before the storm and after getting them put back to sea. A day or two later she was sighted off Savannah. Since that time she has vanished as completely as the Cyclops, and with as much mystery.

The gasoline launch put back into Charleston about the same day the Miramar was sighted off Savannah, finding the heavy seas outside too much for her. Those aboard the launch could give no clue as to what became of the Miramar.

The Day in Finance

By R. L. BARNUM

New York, February 18.—Both markets were quiet. The stock market was also quiet but on the steady side, a very quiet situation that existed early this week.

Motor and oil shares made the best showing. Automobile manufacturers are going ahead with plans for a big year. Industrial Philadelphia and Detroit made a further gain the past week over the previous week up 1.35 to 267.48. This new high for the year compares with 207.84 at this time last year and with 205.78 the 1925 high made in November. Oil shares were strong on rumors of an early announcement of an operating agreement between Tidewater and Associated.

Gasoline Increase. An increase of a cent a gallon in the tank wagon price of gasoline in many parts of the country brings the average for 30 cities up to 10.45 cents. This is 1.35 cents below the price at this time last year, 2.5 cents below the 1925 high and 3.6 cents above the 1925 low.

President Mitchell of the National City bank, agrees with R. B. Mellon, president of the Mellon National bank of Pittsburgh, and a brother of Secretary Mellon, that fundamental conditions throughout the country are sound with the future promising. Mr. Mitchell does not want to see business this year better than in 1925 fearing inflation and he urges caution on the part of the average business man. He says the money market leaders are guarding against inflation.

Stock Splitting. Announcement is made by the Arnold Print works that the company's capital stock will be reduced from $3,000,000 to $500,000 by retiring stock in the treasury and by using the accumulated surplus to buy shares from the holders on the outstanding stock. This is an unusual procedure. In these days when companies are increasing outstanding stock by declaring stock dividends which pull down the accumulated surplus. Many companies are splitting up their stock in order to place it in the hands of employees and the big outside public, realizing that the average citizen would buy 10 shares of stock at $25 a share when he could not think of buying one share of stock costing $250 a share.

Hudson Motors is planning to increase its daily production within the next few days from 1,000 to 1,300. By the first week in March it is expected that the figures will be 1,700 and increases will then continue until 2,300 is reached at the peak of the

Markets Quiet—New Gasoline Increases—General Electric Makes New All-Time High—Many Companies Splitting Up Their Stock.

Spring demand. For March, April and May monthly production of 40,000 is expected or 120,000 for the quarter against 60,000 for December, January and February.

General Electric Up. General Electric made a new high for all time today and was predicted for the stock before the upward movement ends. A split-up in General Electric, such as occurred in American Can, is expected.

Speaking at a meeting here of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, Vice President Roberts, of the National City bank, who enjoys an international reputation as an economist, predicts that ownership of great corporations by the public and by employees will take the place of the existing system of ownership by individuals of small industries, adding: "The business of the country is coming more and more to be done by large corporations. This being accepted as the future trend of industry it follows that the savings of the people must be invested in the shares or obligations of these corporations instead of in the ownership of a multitude of small industries as formerly. It will require no stretch of theory or imagination to foresee these great organizations for production, transportation and distribution owned by their employees and by the people whom they serve and a gradual development of a higher stage of cooperative society."

Larger Corporations. There is no question but that Mr. Roberts is right in saying that the trend today is in the direction of larger and larger corporations with these corporations placing their securities in the hands of employees and of the big outside public. Undoubtedly we as a nation will profit by this movement because conservatism grows with ownership of interest and dividend-paying securities. But we will also lose by it because small industries will be crowded out. If the movement goes far enough the time will come when employees will not demand higher pay because higher pay would mean smaller dividends. That time has not arrived as yet, however, and is not likely to arrive as far ahead as can now be seen.

On the other hand, inasmuch as history repeats itself, it is safe to predict that the time will come just as it did after the great consolidation period beginning in 1898, when the big outside public will become overflooded with mergers and new securities representing mergers. When that time comes another leader with a big stick such as Roosevelt will arise.

The Coca-Cola Company

The Report of the Coca-Cola Company for 1925 Has Been Issued

1. Net profits for the year amounted to $7,899,580.53.
2. Increase in volume over previous YEAR MORE THAN 14%.
3. Total volume in 1925 nearly double total volume in 1918.
4. Should the 1925 rate of increase continue, the volume of sales would double in approximately six years.
5. Between January 1, 1925, and January 1, 1926, the company paid out in cash:—

Federal Income Tax . . . . .	$ 806,000.00
Preferred Dividends . . . . .	662,961.03
Common Dividends . . . . .	3,500,000.00
Preferred Stock purchased in open market or called for retirement . . . . .	5,324,902.50
Total . . . . .	$10,293,863.53

6. Despite this expenditure, the net current assets, after deducting current liabilities, were reduced only $48,970.73.
7. While Coca-Cola is typically an American product, the company's business in England, Canada and other foreign countries is showing a splendid growth.
8. THE INTEGRITY OF THE TRADE-MARK OF COCA-COLA HAS BEEN CLEARLY AND DEFINITELY ESTABLISHED IN THE HIGHEST COURT IN THE LAND. The purity of the product and the cleanliness and efficiency of distribution has been valued to the extent "COCA-COLA HAS THE GREATEST DISTRIBUTION OF ANY ARTICLE MADE BY A SINGLE COMPANY IN THE WORLD."
9. Physical facilities and equipment of the company are sufficient to produce a largely increased output.
10. More than $60,000,000 has been spent in advertising Coca-Cola in the last forty years.
11. Mr. Robert W. Woodruff was made president of the company April 1, 1923, since which time he has reorganized the sales, administrative and productive activities of the company. The result of this work was shown in 1925, but, in my opinion, will be shown more clearly during the present and coming years. Mr. Woodruff is alert, capable and aggressive. He embodies the spirit of modern business progress.
12. Atlanta and Georgia have benefited directly and indirectly from the national and world-wide advertising of Coca-Cola. The success of Coca-Cola has directly and indirectly quickened the business pulse of the community, state and the South. In addition, it has produced and enhanced religious and educational facilities.*
13. The good will value in relation to Coca-Cola, built up by merit of the product, efficiency in production and distribution, is more clearly defined and more definitely established than that of any other product.
14. Likelihood of retirement of all preferred stock, and increasing sales will result, in all probability, in the sale of preferred stock by present holders and the investment of the proceeds in the common shares by outright purchase or on a conservative margin.
15. Any depression in common shares occasioned by dissolution of Coca-Cola International or rights given shareholders to withdraw stock, in my opinion, will be of no marked proportion and of short duration.
16. In my opinion, all the remaining preferred stock will be retired during the present year, after which time a greater number of shares will likely be issued and a more liberal dividend policy adopted.
17. I believe that the company's stock has inherent and intrinsic value. I believe that the increasing earning power will be recognized by a constantly growing number of shareholders, not only in Atlanta, but also in Georgia and throughout the world.

Burlesque on Own Members

SATIRICAL PRESENTATION FOLLOWED BY DANCE

Features Fifty Club Show

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

Fun in riots, fun in spasms and fun in hysterics flew all over the Woman's Club auditorium Thursday night when members of the Fifty Club presented their annual "scandal," under the title "Helen's Husband," a burlesque of the romance of Helen of Troy. The show proved to be one of the cleverest productions of its kind ever offered in Atlanta.

Local conditions were lampooned, club members were glib, there was a lot of real old-fashioned burlesque and a general good time was had by all actors as well as audience. Then some members of the Junior League chipped in with an impromptu fashion show which proved to be one of the hits of the evening. After the actors got tired of acting, the talkers got tired of talking and the Junior League got tired of looking cute and devilish, the cast joined with the audience in a dance which lasted far past midnight.

Barnard Boykin started the ball rolling with his opening speech, during which he took occasion to present prizes in a Charleston contest to Dr. W. W. Memminger, Moll Wilkins and Lee Ashcraft. He then presented Major Clark Howell, who outlined the serious side of the situation in a funny speech. Major Howell then presented Enrico Leide, who conducted the Fifty Club orchestra, which played a

YOUR BEST LOCATION

For department store, clothing store or any retail store use, we suggest a Peachtree store combination with 2nd, 3rd or 4th floor in the Arcade.

To each street store, up stairs floors 108x100 can be added and reached by elevator and stairways. The idea has been developed in other cities and provides high grade retail space at a minimum rental.

Each floor possesses maximum light and considering the location and many services in the Arcade, it is an ideal spot for business concerns of every character, with forty thousand people passing through it every day.

If you are interested, let me tell you more about it.

HEARINGS OPENED ON SHOALS BILL

Washington, February 18.—(AP)—O. C. Merrill, secretary of the federal power commission, testified today before the senate agriculture committee on the Randall bill for disposition of Muscle Shoals.

He said he assumed the measure would be considered as a substitute proposition in case the resolution for a joint congressional committee to negotiate for a lease on the properties failed, or that no satisfactory offer for them was received in the event such a committee was created.

Merrill said the question of production of nitrate was a gamble in so far as the government was concerned, for each offer for the properties had been hedged about by conditions so that the government would lose in case of failure, and the bidder would win in case of success. He urged adequate experiments on the nitrate question so that the full claims of success might be readily at hand.

Provisions of the Randall bill providing for experiments on commercial scale at Muscle Shoals to determine the costs of production of nitrates were favored by Merrill. He said he believed such a study a good thing if there is not any adequate offer for the properties. In Merrill's opinion, even if the adequate offers are received such studies might be of great value.

"As it is," said Merrill, "the manufacture of nitrates at Muscle Shoals is a great gamble with the character of the plant which they are. They were built to use the dynamite process which is now practically obsolete. All previous offers for operation of the nitrate plants have been based on the theory that while the winner is entitled to take all he could the United States should stand for all of the loss."

On the general proposition of the federal power commission, given control of the whole plant at Muscle Shoals, Merrill was noncommittal.

400 DELEGATES OPEN SHRINE HEADS' MEET

Lexington, Ky., February 18.—(AP)—Potentates, past and present, today welcomed to Kentucky and to Oleika temple the more than 400 delegates attending the opening session of the Shrine Directors' Association of America.

Kenneth H. Gillette, of Al Malakiah temple, Los Angeles, Cal., president of the association, presided. He was welcomed by the local Shrine officers. The delegates were entertained with a three-hour automobile ride that included stops at several famous livestock farms around Lexington.

Car Men Vs Police In Wordy Argument To Define Authority

The counterpart of the story of the fustic constable who couldn't persuade the stranger he was an officer of the law was enacted here early Thursday morning. Four members of Atlanta's illustrious "Shrine" and the crew of an owl trolley were principals in the farce.

From conflicting accounts of the incident, it appears that the officers—Recorder E. E. Hutton, C. C. Harner and R. L. Moseley—dashed madly by the standing car of Motor-man J. E. Padgett and Conductor S. M. Forrester at North Boulevard and East street.

"What the—," detectives claim the motorman yelled, adding a few choice expletives. They turned their auto around and returned to reprove the car men, whereupon, they say, the latter declined to supply their names to decorate "copies of charges."

As a result, the officers claim two of their number boarded the car; rode to the hotel and carried the carmen to police headquarters on charges of disorderly conduct.

On the other hand, the trolley crew claims the sleuths auto hit Motor-man Padgett's arm and bruised it, and that the officers failed to explain their authority to demand names in a high-handed manner.

Recorder E. E. Hutton will get an earful of the controversy in police court this morning.

BAKERY IS ROBBED WHILE CREW WORKS IN BASEMENT

The bakery of Vannie Tilden, at 305 Peachtree street, was entered by burglars about 11:15 o'clock Thursday night, while the foreman, J. D. Cox, of 155 Mills street, and a corps of bakers were in the basement.

A strong box containing several dollars was taken from a drawer of the table. Call Officers W. A. Chevington and George B. Reed, who investigated, were told that two young white men had been seen loitering about the place earlier in the night.

George West, Unaware Car Had Been Stolen, Told of Its Recovery

George West, of West Lumber company, was unaware of the fact that his automobile had been stolen Thursday night from in front of the Capital City club, until informed by telephone about 9 o'clock that it had been recovered.

Motorcycle Officers C. J. Schilling, W. Tom Milam, L. F. Busby and J. F. Craig pursued two negroes in the act of stripping the machine of its tires, at Houston and Hilliard streets. One of the negroes managed to escape. The other, Horace Reed, who gave an Irwin street address, claimed that his companion had the automobile when he met him and he did not know that it was stolen.

NIGHT CLOSING ORDER ENFORCED IN TIA JUANA

Tia Juana, Mexico, February 18.—Tia Juana experienced a deserted night Thursday, minus American tourists and the "percentage women."

American customs agents closed the international line at 6 o'clock sharp. It was estimated here that more than 600 girls, gambling house dealers, entertainers and bartenders had left Tia Juana for the American side because of lack of business.

King Leads Fight For Typewriters Of British Make

London, February 18.—(AP)—On visiting the British industries fair at Shepherd's Bush today King George learned something about the industrial invasion of Great Britain. The enlightenment came to him while he was inspecting a display of typewriters which the manager told him were "100 per cent British" and then earnestly informed him that the British governmental departments were using typewriters of foreign make.

The king immediately voiced his astonishment and promised to "see to it" personally. His campaign, already begun, seems likely to produce speedy results.

The subject had been ventilated in the house of commons last Monday when Ronald McNeill, under secretary of foreign affairs, excused the government's stationery department for buying American typewriters, on the ground that "almost all the best typewriting machines are of American make."

He was afraid it was a fact that British workmanship up to the present had not produced a very good article, but the stationery office was testing three British machines, and, he added, "when we can find a British machine at all equal in efficiency to the foreign-made machine we will certainly give preference to the British article."

WORDS OF BIMBA FILED IN COURT

Boston, Mass., February 18.—(AP)—Particulars of the words attributed to Anthony Bimba, of Brooklyn, N. Y., Lithuanian lecturer, on which a charge of blasphemy has been lodged against him, were filed in court here today by S. Manuel Rubin, city prosecutor, on motion of defense counsel.

An English translation of the statement said to have been made by Bimba at a meeting in Lithuanian hall here was given as follows:

"People have built churches for the last 2,000 years and we have sweated under Christian rule for 2,000 years. And what have we got? The government is in control of the priests and bishops, clerics and capitalists. They tell us there is a God. Where is He? There is no such thing. Who can prove it? There are still fools enough who believe in the priests. The priests tell us there is a soul. Why, I have a soul, but that soul is in my shoe. Referring to Christ, the priests also tell us He is a God. Why, He is no more than you or I. He was just a plain man."

Particulars also were filed in a second charge against Bimba, that of sedition and treason. In this case the words attributed to the lecturer in English translation were:

"Here we are organizing Lithuanians among Lithuanians, Poles among Poles, the Jews among the Jews and so on to overthrow the capitalist government by revolution in the same way that they did in Russia, and to establish the same kind of government they now have in Russia."

"Workers are out of employment. They are being persecuted here in America and now is the time to organize. We do not believe in the half-breed class, but in the form of government but the soviet form of government here. The red flag will fly on the capital in Washington and there will also be one on the Lithuanian hall in Brooklyn."

HENRY FORD BUYS BLACKSMITH SHOP OF POETIC FAME

Uxbridge, Mass., February 18.—(AP)—Henry Ford has bought Longfellow's famous village smith.

The Detroit manufacturer plans to add the old Taft blacksmith shop to his collection of old New England's buildings and implements in the vicinity of Wayside Inn at Sudbury.

The blacksmith shop was purchased yesterday by W. W. Taylor for Mr. Ford from Louis Albee, who has owned the property for several years.

The shop was built in 1787 by Japhet Taft, grandfather of the late Caleb Taft. It has among its implements a sling used in shoeing oxen, the only one in this vicinity in use up to ten years ago, when Mr. Taft retired.

Henry W. Longfellow was inspired to write his famous poem by seeing Japhet Taft before the forge. Later Mr. Taft fashioned parts of the original into a miniature forge and sent it to the poet.

Mr. Ford plans to take the building to Sudbury.

INMAN CONSIDERS RACE FOR MAYOR

Ed H. Inman, prominent Atlanta business man and former councilman from the eighth ward, Thursday stated that he is contemplating entering the race for mayor in the primary next year. He indicated that he will make a definite announcement in a few days.

Mr. Inman was an influential member of council in 1924-25 and has always taken an active interest in municipal and political affairs.

His only statement to friends Thursday relative to his entry was that he was "considering the matter seriously."

MRS. W. G. OEHMIG, EX-ROMAN, PASSES IN CHATTAHOOGA

Constitution Bureau.

Rome, Ga., February 18.—(Special)—Mrs. W. G. Oehmig, former Roman, died at her home in Chattahoochee yesterday after an illness of several months. Mrs. Oehmig was the eldest daughter of the late Edwards West and spent her childhood in Rome.

As Miss Frances West she was a noted belle and beauty, possessing unusual charm, poise and brilliance. Since her marriage to Will G. Oehmig, over 40 years ago, she had resided in Chattahoochee. She has been honored there with many offices in patriotic and civic organizations. At one time she was president of the U. D. C. of Tennessee.
